Army Nurses in Pacific

BY COL. FLORENCE A. BLANCHFIELD
Director, Army Nurse Corps

IN my two months' tour of the Pacific and its Army hospital installations, I was particularly impressed with the healthy condition among all troops everywhere I went.

Right now troops under General MacArthur's command are exceptionally healthy. Such a revelation was all the more wonderful when one realizes that my tour of inspection was made during the rainy season when respiratory diseases are a constant menace.

Patients in all hospitals were predominantly men and the bulk of the surgery cases was of a minor nature. The evacuation of patients is proceeding satisfactorily. There is no bucklog of patient evacuees.

Morale among Army nurses stationed in that theater was high. That can be traced largely to the fact that Regular Army and Category I and II nurses have replaced those in Category V thus easing the tension for return to the United States and separation from the service. In most instances adequate quarters were available to nurses. In the few instances that I observed where living conditions were not all that we might expect prompt adjustment was promised.

From the time I left Washington on 19 July until my return on 19 Sept., I visited 18 station hospitals, seven general hospitals, five dispensaries and three rest centers. During that time I personally contacted about 90 per cent of all nurses in the Pacific and spent a day and a half with military government nurses in Tokyo and Korea. Their program is progressing rapidly despite language limitations.

It was gratifying to me to find that all personnel in the theater appeared most anxious to get my viewpoint on their problems. Suggestions for improving the nursing service were eagerly sought by all concerned.

There are numerous problems to cope with in the administration of the medical service. A few of these problems as I saw them are:

1. Water Supply—In some places adequate, modern water systems are installed while in others luster bags are used exclusively. In Japanese cities the water supply system was disrupted by war and has not been fully repaired. In Korea there are frequently breaks in water lines which necessitate shutting off the water supply until the breaks can be fixed. That causes untold hardships.

2. Supplies—Medical supplies are adequate. There seems to be no problem of distribution.

3. Equipment—that from the United States is available in Quartermaster dumps. However, rapid demobilization of military personnel created a problem of proper distribution.

4. Food Supplies—Rations are well-distributed. In Korea the spoilage of food is a major concern as Korea is at the far end of supply lines.

National Guard Policies

A recommendation for a revised personnel policy that will ensure a just system of promotion in the Army of the United States in event of a future emergency was among the resolutions adopted last weekend by the National Guard Association conference in Buffalo, N. Y.

The War Department has been "either unable or reluctant" to put into effect a fair system of promotion, the National Guardsmen contended, and the failure to do so "has brought about gross discrimination against the Civilian Component Officers and often to the great detriment to the service."

National Guard organizations were "ruthlessly dismembered" and their Commanding Officers "relieved under every conceivable pretext," another of the resolutions stated. This was one evidence of the discrimination which the National Guard Association charged, has been leveled against the Guard throughout the years.

"The National Guard Officers and the Reserve Officers soon learned when war was declared that there were definitely two distinct classes of officers within the Army of the United States," the Guardsmen agreed, "one standard for the non-Regular and another standard for the Regular Army Officer; based primarily upon the fact that only Regular Army Officers were permitted to serve in high command or administrative positions and definitely not upon the basis of efficiency."

Retirement of Reserves

With a view toward re-introducing legislation creating retirement benefits for personnel of the reserve components of both the Army and Navy, a Joint Army-Navy Personnel Board is studying legislation which failed of enactment in the 79th Congress, including H.R. 4758, a bill introduced for this purpose shortly before adjournment.

The House Military Affairs committee was informed by the Navy Department that on the completion of studies by the Joint Personnel Board, a bill that applies equally to each of the services would be recommended to the 80th Congress. This information was contained in a letter from the Navy dated 17 Sept.

The bill provided that an officer, War-rant officer, or enlisted man of the Reserves would be eligible for retirement on reaching the age of 50 or credited with not less than 15 years of separate or combined service in any one or more of the reserve components of the land or naval forces.

By the terms of the bill, there would have to be not less than 7 years of active duty credit made up of the sum of all active Federal service plus all active non-Federal service, five years of active non-Federal service to count as one year of active Federal service. The minimum requirement would be 10 years of active non-Federal service in a reserve component of the land or naval forces plus 5

Policies for Dismissal of New Officers Issued

A system for the elimination of inefficient and undesirable officers of the Regular Army has been promulgated by the War Department in new regulations implementing the provisions of the National Defense Act.

The provisions of the National Defense Act are that any officer of the Regular Army, regardless of length of his active duty as a Reserve, AUS, or National Guard officer, is, during his first three years of Regular commissioned service subject to revocation of his commission by the Secretary of War should his conduct or performance of duty stamp him as undesirable.

The new regulations list causes for the revocation of commissions, among which are:

Demonstrated inability to exercise the necessary leadership of command required by an officer of the Army.

Lack of or inability to acquire technical efficiency required in an officer.

Habitual intemperance or personal misconduct.

Repeated failure to meet personal financial obligations or other mismanagement of personal affairs reflecting discredit upon the military service.

The setting up of reclassification boards and a board of final review is authorized in the regulations. Reclassification boards will be convened under the provisions of existing Army Regulations and the board of final review will be convened by the Secretary of War as is deemed necessary. The latter board will consist of not less than five general officers of the Regular Army.

The War Department emphasizes that the regulations are not intended to be disciplinary and that the procedures prescribed are not to be used in lieu of court martial action. It is explained, however, that conviction by a court martial for a major offense, recurrent convictions for minor offenses or recurrent punishments under Article of War 104 may be cause for taking action prescribed by the regulations.

The new regulations appear in Section IV, War Department Circular 281, the text of which follows:

1. STATUTORY PROVISIONS. Section 23 of the National Defense Act, as amended (10 U.S.C. 484a; M.L. 1939, Sup. III, Sec. 124) reads as follows:

The Secretary of War, under such regulations as he may prescribe, may hereafter revoke the commission of any officer on the active list, initially commissioned after the date of this Act, who, at the date of said revocation, has had less than three years of continuous service as a commissioned officer of the Army, and each officer whose commission is so revoked shall be discharged from the Army: Provided, That until 1 July, 1942, the marriage of an officer shall not be a cause for revocation of commission but that after that date, under regulations issued pursuant to the authority contained in this Act, marriage may be a cause for revocation of commission only in the event that the officer marries within one year subsequent to the date of his original commission.

2. GENERAL. a. The provisions of the foregoing statute and of these regulations are applicable to every officer appointed in the Regular Army without regard to the length

Foreign Policy

New York Times—"In requesting the resignation of Mr. Wallace as Secretary of Commerce, President Truman has done what he could to rescue American foreign policy from the near-disaster into which the events of the preceding eight days had plunged it."

Richmond Times-Dispatch—"The international aspects of the Truman-Wallace imbroglio are even more far-reaching, at the moment, than those of a domestic charter."

Philadelphia Inquirer—"Now that Henry Wallace is, fortunately, out of President Truman's Cabinet, it is time for the American people to reappraise with extreme care the position of the United States in world problems concerning which Wallace, for a time, has created great confusion and grave misconception."

Washington Post—"How the rifts in foreign policy in the Administration are used abroad is not always plain to the observer in America. But a knowledge of Soviet tactics in conference leaves one in no doubt on this score. Even an American newspaper criticism is likely to be produced on the Russian side as an exhibit."

Chicago Tribune—"Before Mr. Truman can even pretend that he is conducting foreign affairs in the interest of Americans he must send the pro-English Secretary Patterson packing after the pro-Russian Secretary Wallace."

Indianapolis Star—"Wallace not only has embarrassed our Secretary of State, but has incurred the resentment of the heads of the Army and Navy Departments."

Baltimore Sun—"The issue posed by Mr. Wallace's speech was part of the greatest problem of our time, which is how to find a modus vivendi with Russia. Mr. Byrnes, with Mr. Truman's backing, is following one policy, very distasteful to the left-wingers. Mr. Wallace—honestly, if you like, but certainly with an eye to his own future political status—chose to challenge that policy precisely as the left-wingers have challenged it."

Constantine Brown, in Washington Star—"Mr. Wallace hates anything in uniform. He considers the 'brass' as having an evil jingoistic influence on peace-minded civilians. Hence, he rejects the information these men possess which throws a light on the intentions of other countries. President Truman and Secretary Byrnes are as anxious as Mr. Wallace to avoid another war."

The Association 21 Sept. reelected its officers and selected Columbus, Ohio, for its 1947 conference.

The officers are: Maj. Gen. Ellard Walsh (Minn.), president; Maj. Gen. Edward Martin (Pa.), past president; Brig. Gen. James C. Dozier (S. C.), vice president; Brig. Gen. Fred M. Waterbury (N. Y.), secretary, and Brig. Gen. Milton R. McLean (Kan.), treasurer.

Pertinent excerpts from the resolutions adopted by the National Guard Association follow:

System of Promotion

"Whereas, throughout the years, and most notably during the conduct of World War I and World War II, the War Department has seemingly been unable, or reluctant to put into effect a fair and equitable system of promotion, and which failure to do so, on the part of the War Department, has brought about gross discrimination against the Civilian Component Officers and often to the great detriment of the service, and

"Whereas, such failure, or reluctance on the part of the War Department to establish a fair, equitable and efficient system of promotion has further acted to deprive competent and efficient officers of Civilian Components of well-merited promotion by ignoring their rights to such promotion and frequently freezing them in grade due to limitations imposed by rigid tables of organizations, and

"Whereas officers of the Regular Army are not bound by rigid tables of organization and during the conduct of World War II were promoted en bloc and en masse while the Civilian Components and Emergency Officers were frequently denied promotion throughout the war, notwithstanding eminently satisfactory service in grade, and

"Whereas such failure on the part of the War Department to put into effect a fair and equitable system of promotion adversely affected the morale of the Civilian Component and Emergency Officers and all too frequently deprived them of merited promotions while the commissioned personnel of the Regular Army were being promoted rapidly, and as a result were able to replace National Guard and Reserve Officers in command of Units from the Division to the Battalion:

"Therefore be it resolved, that the National Guard Association in conference assembled this 20th day of September, 1946, at Buffalo, New York, deploras the fact that in all these years the War Department has failed, or refused, to establish a just system of promotion in the Army of the United States and recommend that without delay and through the medium of a Joint General Staff Committee, studies be initiated toward the promulgation of policies which, in the event of future emergency, will ensure improved operation in handling the personnel problems of the Army of the United States which will ensure equitable promotion to the commissioned personnel of the Civilian Components and Emergency Officers as well as the Regular Army component of the Army of the United States."

Promotion of Colonels

"Whereas at the time of mobilization, incident to World War II, the National Guard furnished a substantial number of Colonels and Brigadier Generals, nearly all of whom had served for a period of approximately twenty-five years and in many instances with excellent combat records in World War I, and

"Whereas with few exceptions such officers were denied promotions during the conduct of World War II, notwithstanding the fact that hundreds of Regular Army Officers by far their juniors in rank and grade without previous war service or combat service were promoted many grades, and

"Whereas, as a matter of justice and equity, it is believed that the services of these officers should be recognized and rewarded even at this late date,

"Therefore, be it resolved by the National Guard Association of the United States, in conference assembled at Buffalo, New York, this 20th day of September, that the President of this Association is hereby directed to recommend to the War Department an extension of the present policy on promotion to permit the promotion of National Guard officers who hold, or have held the rank of Colonel or higher and whose services have been satisfactory during World War II, to the grade of Brigadier General or Major General, as the case may be, and that such commissions shall be in the Army of the United States."

West Point

"Whereas an Associated Press Dispatch dated Washington, 2 March 1946 reports that the Secretary of War has re-established a four-year course at the United States Military Academy at West Point, and

"Whereas it is the firm opinion of the members of this Association that such return to a four-year course of training is wrong in principle and will contribute materially to the caste system so firmly established in our Army today and as firmly controlled by the West Point graduates, and

"Whereas the members of this Association feel that with a few noted exceptions the leadership of the West Point graduate in World War II proves conclusively that four years at that institution does not build the best democratic leadership for our country, and

"Whereas West Point was established as a college on the undergraduate level in the early days of this Republic when it had a frontier state which had no college or colleges, in order that it might contribute college graduate officers to the Army of that day, and

"Whereas it is now an anachronism in that all states and territories throughout the nation now have one or more colleges within their borders, and

"Whereas better officer material can now be selected from among twenty-two to twenty-four year old college graduates than can possibly be selected from among the eighteen-year-old high school graduates throughout the country, and

"Whereas a candidate's military aptitude can now be evidenced in senior ROTC, in OCS, and in other military schools before his selection as an officer in the Army, and

"Whereas a post graduate course devoted exclusively to military arts and sciences for all officers of the Army of the United States should now be the mission of West Point,

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that we firmly believe it is a mistake to again establish a four-year course at West Point, and we hereby direct the President of this Association to place this resolution before the Secretary of War and to urge that the present system at West Point be amended or modified as indicated above and as a constructive step whereby it is believed we will obtain greater efficiency and at the same time eliminate the chief factor contributing to the present caste system in the Regular Army."

Treatment of Non-Regular

"Whereas during all the years of its existence the National Guard has been the great exponent of the necessity of an adequate system of national defense in time of peace, to the end that in time of war the security of this nation would be ensured, and

"Whereas the National Guard, with little thought of reward or recognition, carried on throughout the years the struggle for an adequate system of national security and kept alive the faint spark of voluntary service in time of peace, to the end that in time of war there would be some semblance of an Army in being, and

"Whereas the officers and non-commissioned officers of the National Guard were primarily responsible for the maintenance of the tactical force which was to bear the brunt of the onslaught of the enemy and contribute mightily not only to the creation of the great army which came into being and fought with brilliance and distinction in every theatre of operations, as testified to by The Honorable

Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, and

"Whereas notwithstanding the contributions made by the National Guard in advancing and ensuring the security of the nation, a number of its historical organizations were ruthlessly dismembered and their Commanding Officers, from Division to Battalion, relieved under every conceivable pretext, and

"Whereas the National Guard Officers and the Reserve Officers soon learned when war was declared that there were definitely two distinct classes of officers within the Army of the United States as administered throughout World War II, one standard for the non-Regular and another standard for the Regular Army Officer; based primarily upon the fact that only Regular Army Officers were permitted to serve in high command or administrative positions and definitely not upon the basis of efficiency,

"Now, therefore be it resolved, that the National Guard Association of the United States in Conference Assembled this 20th day of September, 1946, at Buffalo, New York, condemns without reservation and brands as a menace to the Nation's security those individuals who were responsible for the unwarranted, unjustifiable and indefensible treatment accorded many of the non-Regular Officers in World War II, and we hereby direct the President of this Association to invite these facts to the attention of the Secretary of War and Chief of Staff and insist, in order to correct similar injustices in the future, that the civilian components be given commensurate representation in Command and Staff positions in the War Department and all senior Headquarters."

Disability Retirement

"Whereas, there appears on the basis of substantial evidence to have been widespread discrimination against non-regular officers in the administration of the provision of the foregoing act (disability retirement) during the progress of World War II and in the awarding of disability pensions as provided by the Acts herein cited, and

"Whereas, there have been innumerable instances where the findings and recommendations of Retirement Boards have been set aside by the Surgeon General of the Army on flimsy grounds and thus depriving non-regular personnel of the benefits provided by law, and

"Whereas, in innumerable cases findings have been made by Retirement Boards of fitness for limited service, or fitness for unlimited service and no such service made available and which findings appear to violate the express provisions and intent of the Act, and

"Whereas Regular Army officers in considerable numbers and notably those in the grade of General Officers have been retired in the highest temporary rank held by them for alleged physical disability incurred in line of duty and which alleged disability is questionable,

"Therefore, be it resolved, by the National Guard Association of the United States, in conference assembled this 20th day of September, 1946, at Buffalo, New York, call upon the Congress to conduct a full and complete investigation of alleged discrimination against non-regular personnel in the administration of the disability retirement provisions of the Statutes herein cited, and

"Be it further resolved that efforts be made by the officers of this Association to provide through the medium of legislation for an impartial Board of Review to review all cases acted upon by Army Retirement Boards and the Surgeon General of the Army to the end that justice may be done to the non-regular personnel who served in the active military service of the United States during the American Defense Period and during World War II."

Reorganization of N. G. and Reserves

"The officers of this Association be directed to confer with War Department officials and the officers of the Reserve Officers' Association in an effort to secure united support for a reasonable, businesslike, efficient approach to the problem of reorganization of the National Guard and Organized Reserves, based on the approved War Department policies and the following formula:

"a. That all Reservists receive like pay for like services.

"b. That only the units of the M-Day force be placed in the highest priority, and that these units be authorized not less than 48 armory drills, with pay, per year, and be fully equipped.

"c. That all units other than those in the M-Day force be placed in a lower priority with respect to organization and equipment, and armory drill pay.

"d. That while the National Guard approves the plan that only units of the M-Day force should be authorized armory drill pay and be fully equipped,—that in the interest of national defense, we are ready to support legislation which will authorize a reasonable number of armory drills to organized Reserve units other than M-Day units, provided the War Department and the Reserve Officers' Association will immediately discontinue their support of the present harmful and uneconomical plan for the organization of Reserve units in competition with the National Guard."

Age-in-Grade Policy

"The National Guard Bureau and the War Department be requested, by the officers of this Association, to modify the maximum age-in-grade policy for officers of National Guard State Headquarters in order that such policy will conform with the statutory age of retirement provided for Officers of the Regular Army, and

"Be it further resolved that the officers of this Association are authorized and directed to make specific recommendations to the Chief, National Guard Bureau for a complete rewriting of the regulations covering State Staff officers."

Pay of Adjutants General

"That the War Department should, upon an equitable basis, supplement the pay of The Adjutants General and to this end the President of this Association is directed to bring this matter to the attention of the Chief, National Guard Bureau, with the request that present regulations be immediately amended to enable such supplemental pay for The Adjutants General to be made from Federal funds appropriated for the support of the National Guard."

Enlistment Ages

"Whereas, The Approved War Department Policies of 13 October 1945, provide under paragraph '2 Procurement C,' relating to 'Age qualifications for enlistment and reenlistment in the National Guard will be the same as prescribed for the Regular Army,' and

"Whereas, the National Defense Act provides for the enlistment of men 18 years of age to 45 years of age, the Regular Army now enlists men at 17 years of age,

"Therefore be it resolved that the officers of this Association be directed to secure legislation which will legalize the enlistment in the National Guard of young men 17 years of age, and

"Be it further resolved that the officers of this Association be directed to cooperate with the War Department and the officers of the Reserve Officers' Association in an effort to secure the necessary amendment to the National Defense Act to fully implement the Approved War Department Policies of 13 October 1945."

Air Pay and Benefits

"Now therefore be it resolved that this Association favors the enactment of legislation authorizing the payment of pay and allowances of the rank of any personnel injured in a flying accident and which requires hospitalization, during the time of such hospitalization.

"Be it further resolved that this Association favors the retirement of flying personnel permanently incapacitated as a result of such flying accident, on the same basis as is now provided for the Regular Army.

"Be it further resolved that this Association favors the paying of a pension to the de-

Navy High Commands

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal this week announced several changes in the Navy's top command positions which are slated to be made within the next few months.

Vice Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Personnel and Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel, will become Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean Areas, in January 1947, taking over from Admiral John H. Towers, who will retire in February.

Vice Admiral Denfeld's Deputy Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean Areas, has not been announced, but he will be a Naval aviator.

Vice Admiral Denfeld was ordered to Washington from the Pacific Fleet immediately after the collapse of Japanese resistance. As Chief of Naval Personnel he directed the Navy's successfully concluded demobilization program and organized and effected personnel plans for the postwar Navy.

Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, who commanded Joint Task Force One in the recent "Crossroads Operation," will assume command of the Eighth Fleet of the U. S. Atlantic Fleet in December 1946. This assignment has been unfilled since the recent elevation of Admiral Marc A. Mitscher to Commander in Chief, Atlantic Fleet.

Admiral Mitscher recently relieved Admiral Jonas H. Ingram as Commander in Chief, Atlantic Fleet. Admiral Ingram will retire following his release from the Naval Hospital in San Diego.

Vice Admiral Edward L. Cochrane, Chief of the Bureau of Ships, will become Chief of the Material Division, Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in November 1946, succeeding Admiral Ben Moreell, (CEC).

Vice Admiral Cochrane was made Chief of the Bureau of Ships in 1942, and directed the Navy's vast shipbuilding and maintenance program during most of the war.

Vice Admiral William M. Fechteler, Commander Battleships-Cruisers, Atlantic Fleet, will take over Vice Admiral Denfeld's duties as Chief of Naval Personnel and Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Personnel in January 1947. Vice Admiral Fechteler is a veteran amphibious force commander of the Pacific warfare and was formerly the Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel.

Vice Admiral Earl W. Mills, Deputy Chief of the Bureau of Ships, will relieve Vice Admiral Cochrane as Chief of the Bureau in November. Vice Admiral Mills has had long experience in the Bureau, having been appointed Assistant Chief of the Bureau with the rank of Rear Admiral on 1 November 1942.

Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, Jr., now an Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel, will relieve Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch, as Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy in January 1947. Rear Admiral Holloway recently headed a special Departmental Board charged with the development of a proper form, system and method of education of officers of the postwar Navy. This Board developed the method, known as the "Holloway Plan," which was recently adopted and passed by Congress.

Vice Admiral Fitch, who agreed to remain on active duty past his normal retirement age, will retire after leaving the Naval Academy.

Rear Adm. Felix L. Johnson, an Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel, will relieve Vice Admiral Arthur S. Carpenter as Director of Public Relations, Office of the Secretary of the Navy, in November. A veteran of amphibious and cruiser warfare in the Pacific, Rear Admiral Johnson has had his present assignment since January of this year.

Vice Admiral Carpenter will retire from active duty after Rear Admiral Johnson takes over, as he will have reached the normal retirement age.

Commodore Paul F. Lee, now on duty in the Bureau of Ships as head of the Ship-Technical Branch, will become Chief of Naval Research in November. Vice Admiral Harold G. Bowen, the present Chief of Naval Research, has been serving on active duty past his normal retirement age in order to get this new office well established, and will retire after being relieved by Commodore Lee.

Commodore Lee has had many responsible positions in the Bureau of Ships. His present tour of duty there started in January, 1942, following his return from the post of Special Naval Observer in England.

Prior to Commodore Lee's advancement to be Chief of Naval Research, Read Admiral Luis deFlores, USNR, Deputy and Assistant Chief, will return to inactive duty. He will leave the Navy on 1 October to resume his work as a consulting engineer, but is expected to remain in close contact with Naval aviation and research.

Vice Admiral Daniel E. Barbey relieved Vice Admiral Charles H. McMorris this week as Commander of the Fourth Fleet, and hoisted his flag aboard the new heavy cruiser USS Oregon City.

Admiral Barbey has served since soon after the end of the war as Commander of Amphibious Forces in the Atlantic. He was relieved last week by Rear Admiral Ralph O. Davis.

Admiral McMorris has been ordered to Washington as a member of the General Board.

Rear Adm. Walter A. Buck, (SC), whose appointment as Paymaster General and Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts was confirmed by the Senate before adjournment, is now expected to relieve Vice Admiral William J. Carter, (SC), on 1 October. Vice Admiral Carter is retiring.

Leadership in Pacific

Contradicting a statement by Representative John E. Sheridan, Pa., of the House Military Committee, that a sub-committee of which he is acting chairman had recommended the removal of Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge as American commander in Korea, two members of this committee, just returned from the Pacific, denied to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that such a recommendation had been made.

In a radio interview with Mr. Alexander Griffin, commentator on station WIP of Philadelphia, Representative Sheridan said that he had found to "my despair" that conditions in Seoul, Korea, were "far from what I would expect among American troops in the outer perimeter."

Mr. Griffin asked: "What does your committee recommend in that situation?" Congressman Sheridan replied, "The committee has recommended removal of Lt. General Hodge."

Representative R. L. F. Sikes, Fla., stated that it had not even been discussed by the sub-committee.

Asked about peacetime leadership in the Army throughout the Pacific, the Congressman said it is equal to wartime leadership. Asked whether any Pacific officers are on a committee black-list, he replied in the negative.

According to Representative Sikes, demobilization in the Pacific is practically complete, and the morale of the personnel is improving. He stated, however, that "Something is wrong in Korea in supply and recreational lines" and that the committee had made certain suggestions to General Eisenhower at last week's meeting with the Chief of Staff.

The Representative stated that personnel have been kept too long in the Aleutians, Korea, and the Philippines, and that the committee believes there should be a more frequent shifting of troops in those areas. "Conditions in the Philippines," he said, "are difficult due to the stealing there of supplies and mail."

Representative Dewey Short, Mo., stated:

"I was extremely surprised to read in this morning's papers a statement made by the Honorable John E. Sheridan of Pennsylvania, to the effect that the Committee on Military Affairs has recommended the removal of Lt. General John R. Hodge, Commanding our forces in Korea."

"As a Member of the Committee on Military Affairs and as the Senior Republican Member of the group which recently visited the Pacific area, I am confident that no such agreement has been reached by the Committee, nor has the Committee made any such recommendation to the War Department."

"General Hodge is one of the outstanding combat corps commanders of the recent war. On the basis of my personal observation, I feel that he is discharging his present difficult duties with credit, both to himself and to the United States."

"It is true that at the present time there is a shortage of certain essential supplies in Korea. This shortage has resulted primarily because of a change in responsibility for logistic support of Korea from Headquarters, AFWESPAC in Manila to Headquarters, 8th Army in Tokyo. Prior to the Committee's visit, General Hodge had taken appropriate action to obtain needed supplies directly from the United States and upon our return to Honolulu we learned that a ship with the needed supplies had already been dispatched from that port directly to Seoul."

"Personally, I deeply regret Mr. Sheridan's statement. General Hodge is at the outpost of our forces in the Pacific. He is in a most difficult spot and deserves the whole-hearted support of all our people if he is to successfully fill his important mission."

"I am authorized by my colleague, Mr. Thomas E. Martin (R) of Iowa, another Member of the Subcommittee to say that he concurs in my views and I believe other Members of the Committee will likewise agree."

Universal Military Training

Secretary of War Patterson, addressing the Conference of the National Guard Association of the United States at Buffalo, N. Y., 20 Sept., disclosed that the War Department is basing its plans for universal military training upon a six month period of initial training with the Army.

It is the plan to urge enactment by Congress of a plan providing that length of training, Secretary Patterson said, adding that thorough basic training can be received in that length of time and that National Guard training can be directed to combat team and larger unit levels.

Secretary Patterson said: "The most effective aid to recruiting in the Guard will come from a program for universal military training. The War Department will continue to support the President's program for Universal Military Training. We will urge Congress to enact a plan of universal military training, with an initial period of six months' continuous training with the Army and with further training provided by alternative courses, one of which will be service in the National Guard. There is every reason to believe that a large number of men would select this course and take their advanced training in Guard organizations."

"Universal military training will also enable Guard units to maintain a constant state of combat readiness. The enlistees will have received thorough basic training in the initial six months' period, and the Guard training can be directed to the combat team level and larger unit level. All combat division commanders, National Guard and Regulars alike, with whom I have discussed this, agree that six months is the minimum of basic training which will accomplish this purpose. The gain to the national security in the maintenance of Guard organizations at full strength, thoroughly trained and equipped, always ready to take the field in case of emergency, would be beyond measure."

years of active Federal service. Annual periods of field training or sea duty, and attendance at service schools would count as active Federal service. Retirement pay would be at the rate of 2½ per cent of the annual Federal pay received at the time of discharge or relief from active duty with not in excess of a total credit of 20 years' active Federal Service.

In the letter to the Military Committee, the Navy Department stated that "In view of the broad implications involving all of the armed services in legislation pertaining to retirement, H. R. 4758 and other bills of similar nature have been referred to a Joint Army-Navy Personnel Board for further study and such recommendations as will equitably cover each of the services."

It is believed that consideration of the bills referred to will include S. 1974, the bill, introduced by Senator Maybank, S. C., which was opposed by Senators Johnson, Colo., and Hill, Ala., when up for action in the Senate near the end of the last Congress, and H. R. 7063, an almost identical bill passed by the House. Study of these latter bills will doubtless result in harmonizing them, by omitting any provision objected to by the senators named, and, so, result in the passage of a desirable bill affecting Reserve and National Guard personnel.

Full Time Assistants

"Resolved that a full time on the job assistant is essential to the realization of the N. G. objectives for an M-Day force;
"That the requirement for permanent duty assistants be established on the basis of
"1 per Division or Wing Hq.
"1 per Regiment.
"1 per separate Battalion.
"1 per Company or comparable unit, having a M/Sgt. or 1st Sgt. included in its T/O, and that such permanent duty assistant be selected from Federally recognized commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the National Guard."

Construction of N. G. Facilities

"Direct the officers of this Association to invite to the attention of the President of the United States, Mr. Truman, and the Secretary of War, Mr. Patterson, the fact that the directive of the President discontinuing all construction is working a very definite hardship on the reorganization of the National Guard throughout the United States, and that we request relief from this stoppage in order that certain needed improvements, alterations and additions may be made to the present National Guard facilities from any unexpended balances of the National Guard appropriation for the fiscal year 1947."

Standardization of Forms

"The President and officers of this Association be authorized, and they are hereby instructed, to recommend to the War Department that all administrative forms and practices in the Regular Army and the National Guard be reviewed for the purpose of effecting complete standardization and thereby expediting effective mobilization in case of need."

Franking Privilege

"That the National Guard Association of the U. S. urges the War Department to secure immediately the extension of the franking privilege to all Federally recognized units of the National Guard of the United States."

Air Wings and Groups

"Instruct its officers to insist that the staff and commanding officer of Wings and Groups of the Air National Guard be agreed upon by the states concerned in the same manner as is done where divisions are organized in two or more states."

Coordinate A-N Reserves

"The officers of this Association be instructed to confer with the Chief of the National Guard Bureau, and to initiate action with the proper officials of the War Department, whereby the allocation of reserve units of the Army and Navy may be coordinated to avoid duplications and uncontrolled procurement of man power and to the further detriment of the internal security of the state."

Construction Policy

"Whereas the approved War Department policies provide that the following general principles for the division of responsibility will obtain:

"1. The States will furnish the personnel, adequate armories, the storage facilities;
"2. The Federal Government will supervise the instruction and will furnish the outdoor training facilities, the pay, and all uniforms, equipment and ammunition;
"3. When the requirements for a balanced force in the Army of the United States necessitate the allocation to a State of troops or equipment, the housing or storage of which would impose an inequitable burden upon the State or Territory such allocation will be made with the understanding that the Federal Government will contribute its equitable share of the expense of constructing and maintaining the required facilities;

"Now, therefore, be it resolved that the National Guard Association hereby directs the President of this Association to take such steps as are necessary to have the War Department, the Bureau of the Budget and the Congress obtain an appropriation of $10,000,000, with which to begin the proposed construction program."

Duties of National Guard Bureau

"The President of this Association is directed to press for the enactment of legislation which will define the duties of the National Guard Bureau of the War Department by law, and which, in the event of unification of the Armed Forces, in the future will raise the National Guard Bureau to a level that will enable it to exercise complete administration and supervision over the Air, Ground, Service Forces of the U. S. National Guard and over corresponding civilian components of the Navy such as the active naval reserve, or naval militia."

Surplus Property

"Directs the President of this Association to bring to the attention of the War and Navy Departments, the Director of Selective Service and the Congress without delay, the urgent necessity for adopting and carrying out a policy, or enacting the necessary legislation, whereby the Several States, Territories and District of Columbia shall be enabled to avail themselves of the use of such surplus property, equipment and material for military purposes before such installations and equipment are irretrievably lost in the current program of disposing of war assets."

Old Age Retirement Status of CivilianEmployees

"Directs the President of this Association to take such steps as may be necessary to accomplish changes in Sections 67 and 90 of the National Defense Act, as amended, so as to provide for retirement privileges for such employees with appropriate deductions from their pay as is now provided by law for all other civilian employees of the Federal Government."

Property and Disbursing Officers

"Approves the principle of the employment of United States Property and Disbursing Officers on an active Duty full-time status and recommends to the Chief, National Guard Bureau, to continue in effect the present system whereby such Property and Disbursing Officers shall, while so serving, receive the pay and allowance of their grades and which grades shall be commensurate with the size of the National Guard of their respective States, provided however, that they shall continue to be under the jurisdiction and direction of their respective State Military Authorities."

Uniform Clothing Allowance

"The President of this Association is directed to confer with the Secretary of War for the promulgation of policies and regulations which will permit non-regular officers of the Army of the United States to purchase uniforms and equipment from the Army Quartermaster Depot and the Post-Exchanges of the Army, and in the event of the failure of the War Department to promulgate such a policy, that the proposed legislation, authorizing a uniform clothing allowance for non-regular officers be broadened to include authority for the purchase of uniforms and equipment from the Army Quartermaster Depot and Post-Exchanges."

All Non-Regulars in AUS

"The President of this Association is directed to press for the immediate amending of Section 38 of the National Defense Act so as to provide that all non-regular officers will hereafter be appointed and commissioned in the Army of the United States."

Mobilization Plan

"Recommends that the War Department, through a properly constituted Joint General Staff Committee, appointed in conformity with the provisions contained in Section 5 of the National Defense Act, proceed without delay to prepare a Plan of Mobilization to the end that such plan will be effective on M-Day."

Merger of Armed Forces

"It is the studied judgment of this body that the unification of our Armed Forces is an essential step in the development of a sound program for the future security of the Nation and believe firmly that the adoption of such a system of organization of our Armed Forces is best calculated to maintain the security of the Nation and the peace of the world, and to that end instructs and directs its officers to support in principle efforts for the unification of the Armed Forces, and substantially as proposed by the President of the United States."

Universal Military Training

"Do hereby approve the principles and provisions contained in H.R. 6544 and S. 2303 (UMT bills), and direct its officers to support the measures, or other similar thereto, and press for the speedy enactment thereof by the Congress."

Official Data

"The officers of this Association be instructed and directed to take all necessary means to ensure that official source data, incident to World War II, be furnished to the several States."

Unappropriated Funds

"It is the studied judgment of this body that nonappropriated funds resulting from the closing of Officers' Clubs of the Army of the United States should be used primarily for the benefit of the associations of the individuals who made such possible through the several Associations and Agencies herein indicated, and,

"Be it further resolved, that the Officers of this Association are hereby instructed and

Flag Rank Selections

Line and staff selection boards to recommend officers for temporary promotion to Rear Admiral will be convened in the Navy Department about 12 November.

Officers to be considered will be all Captains senior to the signal numbers as follows, as listed in the Navy Register of 1945:

Line—1026;
Medical Corps—25,683;
Supply Corps—29,479.

This includes officers now serving under restrictive appointments (spots) in the rank of Rear Admiral and Commodore who in the rank of Captain are senior to such signal numbers.

Any officer described above may, if he desires, forward at any time direct to the Bureau of Naval Personnel for delivery to the President of the Board so as to be received not later than the convening date of the Board, a written communication inviting attention to any matter of record in the Navy Department or to any other official matter concerning himself which he deems to be important in consideration of his case. Communications shall be forwarded via air mail.

Adm. Halsey on A-Bomb

Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, jr., has issued a formal statement modifying remarks made by him in Buffalo 7 Sept. to the extent that the atom bomb was a toy and that scientists were responsible for the bomb explosion over Hiroshima.

Full text of his statement, issued 22 Sept., follows:

"About the time of the surrender of the Japanese I made a statement that I was sorry the horrible weapon, the atom bomb, had been discovered by mankind and I regretted that it had ever been dropped.

"I made this statement as Commander Third Fleet, representing officers and men who had been fighting for nearly four years.

"At that time I was cognizant of the fact that Japan had put out peace feelers through Russia before the first atomic bomb had been dropped. I believed that all men who had been fighting with me resented the exaggerated statements that the atom bomb was responsible for the collapse of Japan. This bomb had been dropped only ten days before the surrender.

"We had lost too many comrades in helping to bring Japan to her knees not to feel this keenly.

"I was in no way cognizant of the origin of the bomb nor the immense amount of work that had been done to perfect it. I naturally knew that it was a culmination of the efforts of industry, military authorities, and scientists. What part each had in the development I did not know then nor do I know now. In an informal talk with a reporter in Buffalo I made the statement, in effect, that I knew nothing about the atom bomb nor the experiments at Bikini. I was cognizant that the bomb had killed an immense number of Japanese in Hiroshima and Nagasaki. I also repeated that I was sorry the first bomb had ever been dropped because the Japanese had already requested terms of peace through the Russians. I advisedly, I used the word 'toy.' 'Toy' is Navy slang for any new weapon. It is only in this sense that I used the word. No sensible person could think of a weapon that killed thousands of people as a toy in the commonly accepted sense of the word. I do not think I used the word 'scientists' in connection with dropping of the bomb. Certainly no man with forty-five years of military experience would make the statement that scientists were in a position to dictate when, where, and how a military weapon of this potentiality should be used. Furthermore, I had no intention of intimating that scientists were responsible for the drop."

Undersea Warfare

Rear Admiral Charles W. Styer, Coordinator of Undersea Warfare in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations, stated this week that the Navy must be prepared "to meet attack from under the sea by true submersibles capable of maneuvering indefinitely submerged at high speed, and at great depths."

"We must be prepared to strike with similar weapons when necessary," Admiral Styer declared. He continued:

"In the Navy's peacetime development program, the Coordinator of Undersea Warfare plans to direct that part of the Navy's peacetime program to fully exploit this new concept, keeping in mind the necessity for strong measures for adequate defense.

"It is the aim of the Coordinator to investigate and exploit all recent developments applicable to this type of warfare, including the possibilities presented by the advent of atomic power and weapons. Many new types of submarines may be expected in the future growing out of special wartime tasks assigned our submarines in the Pacific.

"We visualize bombardment and carrier submarines designed to carry guided missiles or pilotless aircraft undetected to the shores of any future enemy. Picket submarines, transports and cargo carriers will be developed as necessary to provide for hemispheric defense. Such types must be capable of operating in any waters from the Arctic to the tropics."

Human Effects of Atom Bomb

"Much valuable information has been gained not only in relation to biological effects of radiation injury, but also the effects of blast, heat and light" as a result of the two atom bomb experiments in Bikini atoll, according to an announcement 24 Sept. by Operations Crossroads.

The information was obtained through study of 2,500 animals on board the USS Burleson, which arrived in Washington, D. C., to transfer its animal cargo to the Naval Medical Research Institute of the National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md. The 2,500 animals are some of the valuable survivors of a total of about 5,000 rats, pigs and goats used in A-day and B-day tests.

The Crossroads report summarizes the effects of atomic explosions on the animals as follows:

"It should be stressed that while about 35 per cent of the animals used in Test Able were killed (10 per cent died from air blast, 15 per cent from radioactivity, and 10 per cent killed for study) and in Test Baker radiation sickness proved fatal to all the pigs, no exact parallel of these figures can be drawn for estimating possible effect on human life had the ships of the target array been manned. The animals were deliberately exposed in such a way as to provide information, and only on certain ships which themselves were at specified distances from the explosions.

"The harmful radiation effects of the bomb were much more pronounced in the second test. This was due principally to residual radioactivity resulting from contamination of many ships for a long period.

"Deaths may be expected up to and even more than months after the animals are exposed to radiation sickness. Animals affected by severe radiation sickness become apathetic, lose appetite, appear weak and are prone to develop secondary infection causing their deaths. Those with the heaviest doses of radiation die within a few days, although those affected with lighter doses show no immediate ill effects but develop mild but more prolonged symptoms which may result in their death. Radiation sickness is painless in its effect on animals and humans alike, and since the animal has no knowledge that it has the disease, there is none of the mental anguish that assails a human being. The animal merely languishes and either recovers or dies a painless death. Suffering among the animals as a whole was negligible. Almost none of them were senile at any time. The animals that perished in these tests have not died in vain as their sacrifice will furnish valuable information for future generations of humanity."

Enlisted Navy Retired Pay

The latest decision of the Comptroller General on the subject of retired pay under the Act of 7 Sept. 1944 sets forth the personnel entitled to have their pay recomputed on the basis of that law.

The official synopsis of the decision follows:

"Enlisted naval reservists transferred to the Honorary Retired List and receiving pay under section 310 of the Naval Reserve Act of 1938 may be regarded as in receipt of 'retired pay' within the meaning of section 11 of the act of 7 Sept. 1944, making the service credit benefits of the act retroactive to 1 June 1942, for personnel in receipt of 'retired pay' on 7 Sept. 1944, and therefore, reservists who, on 7 Sept. 1944, were receiving pay under section 310 of the 1938 act by reason of a transfer to said list on or after 1 June 1942, are entitled to have their pay recomputed on the basis of all service now creditable under said 1944 act.

"Enlisted men of the Navy who transferred to the retired list of the Regular Navy from the Regular Navy or the Fleet Reserve, either prior or subsequent to 1 June 1942, and who were entitled to retired pay on 7 Sept. 1944, the date of the act which, retroactive to 1 June 1942, authorized the counting for all pay purposes of certain service that theretofore could not be counted, are entitled to have their retired pay recomputed on the basis of all service now creditable under said act.

"Enlisted men of the Navy transferred to the Fleet Reserve, either prior or subsequent to 1 June 1942, and receiving retainer pay under the provisions of the Naval Reserve Act of 1938 are to be regarded as in receipt of 'retired pay' within the meaning of section 11 of the act of 7 Sept. 1944, making the service credit benefits of the act retroactive to 1 June 1942, for personnel in receipt of 'retired pay' on 7 Sept. 1944, and, therefore, transferred members of the Fleet Reserve who, on 7 Sept. 1944, were entitled to receive retainer pay are entitled to have such pay recomputed on the basis of all service now creditable under said 1944 act."

Launch and Store New Sub

The submarine construction program at the Electric Boat Company, Groton, Conn., ended with the launching of the submarine Walrus on 20 Sept. The partially completed boat, minus major installations, will be sealed for preservation and will go into storage.

Miss Winnifred P. Nagle, of New London, Conn., a secretary at the Submarine Base for 27 years, was the sponsor of the boat, and Capt. Charles W. Gray, USN, Commanding Officer of the Submarine Base, was the launching speaker. Captain Gray was introduced by Mr. O. Pomeroy Robinson, vice president of the Electric Boat Company and general manager of the Groton plant.

In his address Captain Gray said: "Our submarine service helped to win the war because we had among other things outstanding submarines. And in the making of these outstanding submarines it was you workers on the home front who played the important roles. It was you who built the sturdy, dependable, and efficient craft with which unparalleled achievements in underwater warfare were made. You were the ones without whom the submarine service could not have struck down two-thirds of Japan's vital naval ships and merchant marine vessels. To you goes the acclaim of the entire nation, and may I add here that the submariners who took your splendid submarines to sea are indeed grateful for your super-human efforts. They appreciate that you had the desire, the determination, and the know-how to give them the very best in submarine design and construction. We are proud of the subsea craft you built."

Ship Building Record

The House Merchant Marine Committee began hearings this week to learn to what extent record breaking expansion of the U. S. merchant fleet, which contributed so greatly to the winning of the war, brought excessive profits to the nation's shipbuilders.

The committee opened its hearings 23 Sept. with a report from the Maritime Commission that 19 corporations operating government shipyards made "estimated profits" of $356,006,612 with a capital investment of $22,979,275. Mr. Henry J. Kaiser was the first representative of the 19 corporations who are to be called to testify on their operations. Maritime Commission officials will follow.

Five of Mr. Kaiser's shipbuilding activities lost $13 millions, he testified, rather than making any excessively large profit, as charged by an official of the Government Accounting Office. Mr. Ralph E. Casey of the GAO contended that the Kaiser enterprises made $192,237,284 with a capital investment of $2,510,000. The St. Johns River Shipbuilding Corp. of Florida was shown to have begun with $600 and to have made an estimated profit of $2,080,000.

When Maritime Commission officials follow the shipbuilders in testifying before the committee, they are expected to relate details of the country's rapid rise in merchant tonnage to a position at which the U. S. is now recognized as the greatest maritime power in history. A report submitted to the Maritime Commission by its Postwar Planning Committee recently was submitted to the House Merchant Marine Committee which is now conducting the investigation into excess profits.

A portion of the report dealing with "changes resulting from the War" states:

"Vessels have been built at a rate—and in numbers—never before visualized. . . Liberties were being turned out, at the peak of the World War II effort in an average time of 39 days. . . All previous ideas about the time required to build ships were upset by the American program."

The report continues:

"Merchant shipbuilding in the United States averaged about 100,000 deadweight tons a year for the period 1922-23. Construction since the war period, including vessels still under construction and those which contracts had been let as of 1 June 1946, are expected to approximate 5,900 ships of about 57,000,000 tons.

"These figures include tugs, barges, and other small craft; also vessels built or building for foreign account.

"The United States is emerging from the war with about 60,000,000 tons of ocean-going shipping. This is more than five times our prewar strength. Our fleet before the war constituted about one-sixth of the world total. The figure today is nearly four-sixths."

Figures contained in the report show that as of 30 June 1939, the United States had 1,398 vessels of 1,000 gross tons and over, aggregating 11,698,840 deadweight tons; and as of 1 Sept. 1945, the United States possesses 5,529 vessels of 1,600 gross tons and over, aggregating 56,797,700 deadweight tons. This is more than twice the number of vessels and tonnage totals of the British Empire, which is second in size as a maritime power.

U. S. COAST GUARD

THE "miracle rescue" of 18 survivors of the Sabena Belgian airliner crash near Gander, Newfoundland, was the second such rescue by helicopter in which the Coast Guard has participated. Two Coast Guard helicopters evacuated the survivors from a plateau 20 miles southeast of Gander on 21-22 Sept.

The rescue was made possible by the coordinated efforts of the Coast Guard, Army, and civilians. The Coast Guard sent a Search and Rescue officer along with an Army rescue team via Coast Guard PBYS, which evacuated the survivors to Gander after helicopters had lifted them from the plateau surrounded by dense spruce trees where the plane crashed.

All of the rescue was coordinated by the Commander of the Coast Guard's Eastern Area, in New York. In a message to everyone participating in the rescue, he sent his own congratulations and added those of the Commandant, as follows:

"Upon the successful termination of one of the most outstanding aviation search and rescue incidents in peacetime aviation history, I wish to convey my congratulations to the officers and men of the Army Transport Command, Atlantic Division; Newfoundland Army Base Command, Stephenville Army Transport Command Base, Newfoundland Civil Aviation, Commander North Atlantic Ocean Patrol and staff, Coast Guard Air Detachment, Argentia, Helicopter pilots, mechanic and assembly crews, the officers and men of the Floyd Bennett and Elizabeth City Air Stations, and in particular to Doctor Samuel P. Martin and members of the ground rescue party; a most difficult and gruelling job superbly done.

"I take pleasure in quoting a message received from the Commandant of the U. S. Coast Guard this date.

"The outstanding accomplishments of all agencies participating in the search and rescue operations coordinated by you involving the international commercial aircraft recently lost near Gander, Newfoundland, is in keeping with the highest Coast Guard traditions. Please accept for yourself, staff, and forces of your command my sincere congratulations. Convey on my behalf to all U. S. and foreign agencies and personnel contributing to this successful rescue mission a most deserving well done."

The Coast Guard helicopters were flown to Gander in Army C-54's and reassembled in six hours on 21 Sept. Before dark, eight of the 18 survivors reached safety by way of helicopters piloted by Lt. August Kleisch, USCG, and Lt. Walter Bolton, USCG. On the following day, the rest of the survivors were removed. All were flown to the nearby lake, and flown by PBYS from there to Gander.

The Belgian airliner had departed Shannon Airport, Elre, on 17 Sept. and was last heard by radio on the morning of 18 Sept. Soon thereafter, the plane had crashed into a hillside as it was attempting to land at the Gander airport.

Sleeping bags, foods, and medical supplies were dropped to the rescue party from the two PBYS piloted by Lt. James N. Schrader and Lt. Comdr. Larry L. Davis. Temporary aid was given to the survivors until they could be moved to the plateau and evacuated.

In March 1945, Lieutenant Kleisch, pilot of one of the helicopters, received the Distinguished Flying Cross for making a similar rescue near Goose Bay in Labrador.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1946

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Maintenance in accordance with professional studies of our national needs and international commitments, of Regular Establishments organized and trained to utilize and employ materials of war developed by continuing Scientific research, and backed by Industry and Labor kept intimately familiar with the manufacture of such materials.
2. Reconstruction of National Guard and Reserve components federally aided and encouraged to maximum efficiency, and effectively coordinated with the Regular Services, and universal military training.
3. Increase in active and retired pay and allowances to meet risen costs so as to enable maintenance of American standards of living, and protection of such pay from reduction through income taxes.
4. Institution of orderly promotion systems in the Regular Establishments with recognition of war service and war ranks to prevent stagnation, and to insure the maintenance of high professional standards.
5. Continuance and expansion of service schools, including the Army and Navy Staff College, attendance of which shall be open to National Guard and Reserve officers.
6. Suitable rank and retirement benefits for former enlisted personnel and warrant officers who served as commissioned officers during the war.
7. Grant of the same rights and benefits to those who elect to remain in the Services as will be enjoyed by the discharged veterans.
8. Upward revision of pension scales to insure Service widows and dependents a living income.
9. Compensation for Service personnel who use privately owned automobiles on government business.
10. Maintenance of stock piles of strategic materials.

WITH only three months remaining before the convening of the new Congress, it is imperative that immediate publicity be given to plans for revision of the system of permanent promotion for the Regular Army. If the War Department is to benefit from the suggestions, criticism and support of officers in the field the proposed plans must be made public early enough to reach U. S. Army garrisons all over the world and for their reactions to get back to Washington and be evaluated before actual submission of the legislation to the new Congress. It is now taking, for example, six weeks for mail to reach Okinawa. Like delays characterize the postal service to other distant garrisons. Some weeks ago the Department let it be known that it was its intention to make public to the Service the details of the plan worked up for submission to Congress, but now it is understood that members of the General Staff are holding to the view that such matter should not be released until it is actually transmitted to Congress. Yet if the Service does not find out what is in store for it until the plan is actually taken up in Congressional Committees it will be too late for any but those stationed in or near Washington to make their views felt, while officers in the field and abroad will be shut out from expressing their views on a matter destined to control their future careers. Members of the House Military Affairs Committee, as quoted in last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, would like to have the Service apprised of the plan so that they can have the benefit of their opinions and evolve a system which will merit Service support. General of the Army Eisenhower, who served in the office of General of the Army MacArthur when the latter was Chief of Staff, recalls the beneficial suggestions and strong Service support the latter received as the result of open publicity on the drafting of the proposals which led to the enactment of the promotion law of 1935 (the one now in force). In the Spring and Summer of 1934 General MacArthur made public the plans being considered together with the directives to his General Council and invited Service comments. In his directive, General MacArthur said:

"The plan itself, and the procedure employed in preparing it, must be such as to convince every reasonable officer that his own particular situation was thoroughly and sympathetically considered and that the proposed system accords him substantial justice and fair treatment. Even though the plan may fail to provide the full measure of individual advancement to which he may believe himself entitled, he must recognize it as the best and most practicable compromise that can be effected." With the Officer Corps being increased from 14,000 to 50,000 it is vital to morale, and therefore to Service efficiency, that this same reasoning be applied today. We urge, therefore, that the War Department make public now the plan it has worked up for submission to the next Congress.

THE success of the Navy's experimental program of "in-industry" training, as reported last week at a meeting of the Navy Industrial Association in New York, presages an expansion of this method of keeping the Services and industry mutually informed of each others activities, problems, capabilities, and needs. Since last May a limited number of officers of the Supply Corps of the Navy has been assigned to large industrial organizations where they are indoctrinated in business procedures. It is now planned to extend the program to include officers of the Bureau of Ships. The Army Air Forces education and training program, though it has not yet been put into effect, provides for the placement of air officers in civilian industry for training. The Research and Development Division of the War Department General Staff is working on plans for a closer integration of the Army with the industries essential to the prosecution of a successful war. These programs find ready support from industrial leaders who know from their war experience the value of having men in industry who understand the needs of the Armed Forces and of having men in the Services who know the capabilities and limitations of their manufacturing processes. Mr. Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of the Board of General Motors Corporation and chairman of its policy committee, in his last report made the statement that "If the peace is to remain won there must be continuing close liaison between the Armed Services and Industry." Continuing, Mr. Sloan said, "The objective is to keep military people in touch with the latest industrial techniques and to keep industrial people informed of the technical needs of the Armed Services. This will become progressively more and more important as science assumes an increasingly greater role in military requirements." The work of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces contributes to this greater understanding by inviting industrial leaders to lecture to its students. The letting of "education orders," so that manufacturers may get the jigs, gauges, and dies and develop the technique of the production of new weapons, should be instituted promptly. In fact, every effort should be made to assure the closest integration of industry and our forces of National Defense.

A.L.S.—We have been advised by the Navy Department that only accumulated enlisted leave may now be collected by service personnel who have been retired or discharged. Air ROTC Program Outlined

An Army Air Forces Reserve Officers Training Corps program, designed to provide the AAF with a steady flow of college-trained officers, is beginning this fall at 76 colleges and universities throughout the United States with facilities available for an enrollment of 16,200 students, Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Assistant Chief of Air Staff for Operations and Training, disclosed this week.

General Partridge said Air ROTC courses would be available this fall to 7,200 elementary and 9,000 advanced students. Future plans anticipate participation by 50,000 students at 150 colleges.

The four-year program for Air ROTC students will consist of a two-year elementary course and a two-year advanced course leading to a commission as second lieutenant in the Air Reserve, General Partridge said.

Elementary students will receive general instruction to give them a foundation of basic military knowledge. Advanced students will be taught the background, history, and various administrative, tactical and technical aspects of the Army Air Forces during the third year of the course. Fourth-year students will receive specialized instruction to qualify them for definite duty assignments in the AAF, such as a communications, engineering, or transportation officer.

"The particular course offered to the student during his final year," General Partridge said, "will depend upon the academic course he is studying and the courses available in his Air ROTC unit. Within certain limitations, students enrolled in electrical engineering, for example, may take the Air ROTC communications course, and students taking business management may take the administration course."

Between the junior and senior year, Air ROTC students will attend a six-week summer camp and put into practical application the theory learned in school and receive instruction in courses not presented on the campus.

Orientation flight training will be provided in the final year of the course and qualified students who desire to enter AAF flying schools will be checked at the end of this training. Students who show sufficient aptitude will be granted a high priority for selection as student officers at one of the AAF's flying schools. Air ROTC graduates who undertake this training will do so as commissioned officers and will enter a program especially designed for such graduates to avoid repetition of instruction previously given.

The program is open to all college students. Veterans of military service may receive special benefits, with the approval of the Professor of Military Science and Tactics of the institution and its President. These benefits include credit for the first year's training if the individual had served at least six months active duty in the military service. If he had served one year or longer he would be permitted to enter directly into the advanced course.

Instructors will be qualified AAF officers and enlisted men. They will all have been graduated from a special school established for Air ROTC instructors at Perrin Field, Sherman, Tex. Approximately 600 instructors will be needed, 300 officers and 300 enlisted men.

Light Search Radar Developed

Air Materiel Command Headquarters, Wright Field, Ohio, has announced the development of a new light weight search radar.

Known as the "APS-10," the device is only a little heavier and slightly more complex than a home radio, the announcement said, representing a great improvement over the 500-pound, 34-control radar used by the AAF during the war.

The new equipment weighs 125 pounds and is operated by five controls.

Aviation Cadet Status

For computation of leave under the Armed Forces Leave Act of 1946, persons who entered the grade of Naval Aviation Cadet on or after 4 Aug. 1942 will consider active duty in such grade as enlisted service. Persons who entered grade of Naval Aviation Cadet prior to that date will consider active duty in such grade as officer service.

AC Reserve Bonus to be Paid

The Comptroller General 17 Sept. issued a decision ruling that the $500 lump-sum payment may now be made to Air Corps Reserve Officers who have not been selected for commissions in the Regular Army regardless of flying status or lack of training for an aeronautical rating. Claims of former Air Corps Reserve officers, which were held in abeyance pending determination as to eligibility to receive this bonus, are now being processed as promptly as possible and no further action will be required of the claimants.

Maj. Gen. William H. Kasten, Chief of Finance, USA, advises that should further correspondence regarding payment become necessary, it should be addressed to the Finance Officer of the installation where the claim was originally filed.

ATC Pacific Divisions

Major changes in command staffs of two Pacific Division Air Transport Command units have been announced by Brig. Gen. Bob E. Nowland, at his Hickam Field headquarters.

Primarily affected were the Western Pacific Wing and the newly created Rear Echelon at Fairfield-Suisun although the changes reached other bases.

The command staff of the Rear Echelon now consists of Brig. Gen. Archie J. Old, Jr., deputy commander of the Division; Col. Richard T. Kight, replaced by Lt. Col. J. C. Bailey as commanding officer of the 1537th AAFBU at Guam, as new executive assistant to the deputy commander; Major Thomas F. Eakins, formerly of WPW, as special assistant for personnel; Col. A. J. Bird, Jr., former CO of the 1521st AAFBU at Hickam Field, special assistant for operations; Maj. Laurence C. Detwiler, special assistant for traffic, and Lt. Col. William G. Campbell, special assistant for supply and maintenance.

Col. Bird was succeeded as commander of the 1521st by Col. James W. Gurr, formerly assigned to the Continental Division of ATC.

In the Western Pacific Wing, commanded by Brig. Gen. Ivan L. Farman, Col. Adam K. Breckenridge is the new chief of staff; Lt. Col. Chester C. Mowmaw, assistant chief of staff for operations; Lt. Col. Ivan A. Berry, traffic; Maj. Robert P. Kraft, personnel and Lt. Col. H. L. Archinal, supply and maintenance.

Study R-2000 Engine

To establish figures and replacement factors governing work on the R-2000 aircraft engine throughout the coming year, a Joint Army-Navy Provisioning conference was held at Kelly Field, Texas, during the last two weeks in August and the first two weeks in September.

Welcomed to Kelly Field by Brig. Gen. George H. Beverley, commanding general of the San Antonio Air Materiel Area, the conferees for the first week studied the carburetor of the R-2000 engine, which is used principally in C-54 cargo planes and by the Navy and British transports. The second week was taken up with concentration on the ignition system, with Squadron Leader I. Roberts of the RAF as chairman.

In attendance at the conference were representatives from all Army and Navy overhaul activities in the United States, procurement, maintenance and supply personnel from the Naval Bureau in Washington, from Air Materiel Command headquarters at Wright Field, Ohio, and officials from the Pratt-Whitney Corporation, manufacturers of the R-2000 engine.

New PACUSA A-3 Named

Brig. Gen. Kenneth P. McNaughton, former chief of staff of the First Air Division, Okinawa, arrived in Tokyo recently to succeed Brig. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, Jr., as assistant chief of staff of the A-3 division at Pacific Air Command Headquarters.

General Griswold Heads 20th AF

Maj. Gen. Francis H. Griswold, former Deputy Assistant Chief of Air Staff-3, Army Air Forces Headquarters, has been assigned as commanding general of the Twentieth Air Force on Guam.

General Griswold succeeds Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Hopkins, Jr. General Hopkins will be on temporary duty with PACUSA in Japan pending assignment.

Pacific Air Command

Tokyo—Discussing merits of the B-29 Superfortress in air-sea rescue work, 13 officers representing the emergency squadrons of the Pacific Air Command have concluded that the Superfortress should be used as a supplement to the B-17, which is the standard aircraft used by the units at present.

The officers held a two-day session at Headquarters Pacific Air Command, Meiji Building.

Because of the maneuverability of the B-17 the delegates agreed that it is better suited for search operations than the B-29. Constant sight of survivors at sea can be maintained from the B-17, which flies at a lower airspeed and makes sharper turns than the B-29.

However, the delegates concluded that the B-29 is suited for escorting long range flights because it possesses the advantage of range, crew comfort and capacity for carrying complete rescue equipment to be dropped to survivors.

Attending the meeting were Capt. J. Hewlett and Capt. A. D. Ungstad, Fifth Air Force, Japan; Capt. E. E. Lightfoot, Seventh Air Force, Hawaii; Capt. A. L. Biberstein, Capt. A. Fitzpatrick and 1st Lt. D. L. Chapman, 1st Air Division, Okinawa; Maj. James L. Jarnigan and Capt. V. Matthey, Thirteenth Air Force, Philippines; Lt. Col. C. W. Kitchens and Maj. M. E. Beveridge, Twentieth Air Force, Guam; Capt. J. C. Gooseherst and Lt. G. K. Shively, Pacific Air Service Command, Philippines. Maj. T. J. Hanley, Air Sea Rescue Officer of PACUSA, presided.

Curtail ATC Operations

The recent cut in Congressional appropriations has necessitated further curtailment in the operations of the Air Transport Command, according to official announcement 21 Sept. from Army Air Force Headquarters in Washington.

Announcing the consolidation effective on that date of two major ATC components—the Atlantic Division and the Continental Division—AAF officials stated that the Command's domestic activities would be cut between 25 and 50 per cent before 31 Oct.

Atlantic Division will absorb the Continental unit and will be headed by Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, present Continental Commander. A new assignment for Brig. Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, present Commander of the Atlantic Division, has not been announced.

Reductions in current activities at Great Falls Army Air Base, Topeka Army Air Base, Morrison Field and Memphis are being made by ATC in order to absorb the reductions in civilian personnel made necessary by pay increases recently authorized without additional offsetting appropriations. While these stations will not be closed, the level of activity will be dropped to permit readjustments and reorganization in order to absorb the cuts.

Endurance Flight Schedule

As a full scale test of patrol plane endurance and pilot fatigue, a Navy P2V Neptune, nicknamed "The Truculent Turtle," will take off from Perth, Australia, on a non-stop flight across the entire Pacific Ocean to the mainland of the United States late this month.

The terminus of the flight will be determined by actual endurance of plane and crew. Because of the many belts of weather and uncertainty of climatic conditions over such a wide expanse of the earth's surface, duration of the flight may not be predicted specifically. When the "Truculent Turtle" makes landfall on the west coast of the United States some forty-four hours after take-off, it will have covered approximately 9,000 miles.

Pilot and commander of the flight is Comdr. Thomas D. Davies, assistant to the officer in charge of the patrol plane section of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

Bolling Field Anniversary

Bolling Field, D. C., will celebrate its 20th anniversary 2 Oct. Present commanding general of the field is Brig. Gen. B. M. Hovey, who will review troops during a special retreat ceremony marking the anniversary.

Pearl Harbor Report
RESPONSIBILITIES IN WASH-INGTON

FOLLOWING is a continuation from last week's issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL of vital portions of the report of the Joint Congressional Committee on the Investigation of the Pearl Harbor attack. This section treats with Responsibilities in Washington.

Nature of Responsibilities

In seeking to make an assessment of responsibilities for the Pearl Harbor disaster, apart from that which is forever Japan's, it is imperative that the duties and obligations existing in Hawaii be placed in the proper perspective with respect to those attaching to Washington. The responsibility of the commander in the field with his well-defined scope of activity is manifestly to be distinguished from that of the officer in Washington who is charged with directing the over-all operations of the military on a global basis.

Duties in Hawaii

It has been a cardinal principle of military theory to select capable commanders for our outposts, give them broad directives, and leave to their discretion and good judgment the implementation of the Departmental mandate consonant with their more intimate and detailed familiarity with the peculiar problems existing in their particular commands. Admiral Kimmel and General Short were selected because of their impeccable records for two of the most important field commands of the Navy and Army—Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet and Commanding General of the Hawaiian Department. These two officers were primarily and fundamentally responsible—they were the men to whom Washington and the Nation were properly entitled to look—for the defense of the Hawaiian Coastal Frontier.

With respect to Hawaii and the fleet, theirs were the obligations to plan for war, to train for war, and to be alerted for war when it came. The first two of these obligations they discharged in an exemplary manner but in the case of the third, alertness for war, they failed. All of the intelligence, thought, and energies of the field commander are to be devoted to his command. He is to apply all information and intelligence received to his particular situation. He is not privileged to think or contemplate that he will not be attacked. On the contrary, he is to assume and to expect that his particular post will be attacked. He cannot wholly assume that others will inform him when and where the foe will strike. He is "like a sentinel on duty in the face of the enemy. His fundamental duties are clear and precise. It is not the duty of the outpost commander to speculate or rely on the possibilities of the enemy attacking at some other outpost instead of his own. It is his duty to meet him at his post at any time and to make the best possible fight that can be made against him with the weapons with which he has been supplied."

The commanders in Hawaii were clearly and unmistakably warned of war with Japan. They were given orders and possessed information that the entire Pacific area was fraught with danger. They failed to carry out these orders and to discharge their basic and ultimate responsibilities. They failed to defend the fortress they commanded—their citadel was taken by surprise. Aside from any responsibilities that may appear to rest in Washington, the ultimate and direct responsibility for failure to engage the Japanese on the morning of 7 December with every weapon at their disposal rests essentially and properly with the Army and Navy commands in Hawaii whose duty it was to meet the enemy against which they had been warned.

Duties in Washington

The Chief of Staff of the Army and the Chief of Naval Operations of the Navy had the overall responsibility for supervision of our military and naval operations and establishments everywhere, including Hawaii. Theirs was the obligation of determining that all of the equipment available was supplied the field commander which would assist him in discharging his responsibilities. In supplying equipment it was their duty to consider the demands for material from many quarters in the light of the commitments and interests of the United States—to estimate where the most dangerous and likely point of enemy attack might be—and then to effect dispositions which in their best judgment most nearly satisfied the exigencies of the hour. They discharged this duty to the best of their ability.

They had the duty of alerting our outposts in view of the critical situation in our relations with Japan in the days before 7 December and of informing them of probable enemy action. In the dispatch of 27 November, sent Admiral Kimmel and Admiral Hart, the commander in chief of the Asiatic Fleet, there was outlined what at the time was regarded and appeared to be the major strategic effort of the enemy. The Japanese major effort did follow the course outlined in the dispatch. Pearl Harbor was not known to be a point of Japanese attack but it was known that such an attack was a possibility and both responsible commanders in Hawaii were accordingly ordered to take action contemplated to meet this possibility.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—There is increasing intimation that our troops in China, both of Army and Marine Corps, will be scheduled for removal shortly, although decision on this point will certainly be delayed until the report and recommendations of General George C. Marshall, our special envoy to China, are received. General Marshall's own view about the insuperable difficulty, all considered, of our bringing Chinese unity to pass, by keeping our troops there or otherwise, was made clear enough in the joint report which he and Ambassador John Leighton Stuart made some months ago. It is most unlikely that his full report, expected in the fairly near future, will differ importantly from the first. We must at last face the fact that unification of China can be attained by only Chinese, if by anybody, and there is not yet any indication among either Nationalists or Communists of any will to unite. Post-war justification for keeping our forces in China is over.

Two results of withdrawal would be of interest. First, there would be further demonstration of America's sincere desire to have no part in China's internal affairs and an impressive answer to Russia's recently repeated charge that our resident military is a threat to peace in China, Brazil, and Iceland. (The American military in Brazil and China is in reality a handful of technical troops and a comparatively small number of Marines engaged in rolling up our wartime installations, as is well known.) Second, few as are our troops presently in China, if withdrawn they would become available for use elsewhere in the partial rebuilding of those field forces in which our military establishment presently is so seriously lacking. Outside the army, there is scant comprehension of how small is our real force-in-being, which in an unexpected emergency is indispensable. It can be said that we have one considerable force in Japan and another in Europe, but sober appraisal reveals two notable facts: (1) that under the 18 months' service plan, to which the War Department is fully committed, the bulk of General MacArthur's troops must be replaced very soon, and necessarily with green troops; (2) that our forces in Germany are for the most part engaged in purely constabulary duty, and hence organized in units appropriate for that purpose and trained in those techniques, rather than in the field combat techniques of divisional troops. As a result of demobilization, the Army's ranks are largely emptied of men with battle experience and even with training for battle, such as is the very first need of a true army-in-being. To assume that this situation can exist, and that foreign observers are unaware of it, is silly. The circumstance has an unmistakable relationship to the conduct of our foreign affairs. It has no relation to the latest statement of Generalissimo Stalin that our early withdrawal from China is necessary to maintenance of peace. We could respond to this statement—and it certainly is in the American mind—that Russian withdrawal from Manchuria, and especially Dairen which the Soviets are occupying in strength in direct violation of the Russian-Chinese treaty—equally would promote the maintenance of peace. Nor has our early evacuation anything to do with the Russian demand, directed particularly to the United States and Great Britain, for the United Nations to make a detailed report on the number of troops and the air and naval bases they maintain in other states with the exception of former enemy territories. The Security Council rejected the Russian demand since both the United States and Great Britain opposed the revelation of their troop disposition whereas the Soviets would not be required to state the facts about their own strength in the Baltic and Balkan areas.

In normal seasons the retirement of a Secretary of Commerce and the naming of his successor could hardly have much bearing upon the conduct of American foreign policy. But this is not a normal season, and the replacement of Mr. Wallace by Mr. W. Averell Harriman has had a real bearing upon international matters. Mr. Wallace's ill-conceived speech had both stalled our own progress at Paris and incited our diplomatic opponents to fresh attacks. Mr. Harriman's naming and his prompt expression of admiration for Secretary of State Byrnes instantly overcame the handicaps so cruelly loaded upon our delegation. It must be remembered that Mr. Harriman himself has done well in diplomacy, interestingly enough having won the respect and regard of high authorities in Moscow at the very time he was standing up for American principles—an example which our diplomats generally would do well to emulate. A Secretary of Commerce is not commonly called upon to concern himself too much with foreign policy, but the present Cabinet now is strengthened by addition of a member who, outside his normal functions, can be of aid to the President and to his State Department colleague in functions of importance unrelated to commerce.

Meantime, there have been developments at Paris, with the Big Four once more assembled in an effort to drive forward the treaty negotiations which, after all, are Big Four rather than all-nation responsibilities. Mr. Molotov has returned from a Moscow conference, and it is possible to hope that he has been given new instructions which will permit a swifter and better cooperation between East and West: Generalissimo Stalin's interview of Tuesday, distinguishing between actual disagreement and mere noise about disagreement, and finding that "danger of a new war does not exist at this time," is useful in itself and encourages the negotiators. His careful phrasing raises the question of whether the Dictator anticipates a war, not now but in the future, perhaps, when Russia has the atomic bomb, the value of which he decries, but the method of making which he indicates his scientists are working to discover. Aided as these scientists are by German technicians, whom the Soviets seized, it will not be long before they have such missiles in their arsenals. Mr. Byrnes, after the Wallace bumbling, is measurably strengthened by America's prompt and visible support as well as by the determined attitude we have adopted towards Greece, Turkey and the Dardanelles, and indeed throughout the eastern Mediterranean, an attitude expressed by the naval demonstration we have made in that area. Russia understands power, and we are displaying that power by the transfer of our sea forces from the Pacific to the Atlantic and Europe, although our actions are offset by the unfortunate policy of reducing our military and naval strength. The recent prolonged discussions by the all-nation delegates, quarrelsome as they often were, must not be regarded as wholly injurious; on the contrary they gave to numerous subjects public hearing which is essential if we are to have open diplomacy at all (upon which there is more than one view) and thereby they afforded a little guidance to the Big Four, who now must do the real business. Not much time remains before the 23 Oct. meeting of the United Nations General Assembly, and perhaps that very shortage of time will stimulate earlier and wiser decisions. Much progress on several of the minor treaties should be achieved in the coming fortnight.

Hq. Army Ground Forces—The Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, composed of business and professional men in the Fort Monroe, Va., area will sponsor a "welcome" banquet honoring General Jacob L. Devers, Commanding General, Army Ground Forces, to be held at the Chamberlain Hotel, Fort Monroe, 2 Oct. The banquet has been arranged to welcome General Devers and Headquarters Army Ground Forces to Fort Monroe. The headquarters, moved from Washington, will open officially 1 Oct. Honored guests at the banquet will include General Carl Spaatz, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces and Maj. Gen. E. R. Quesada, commanding general Tactical Air Forces.

Officers reporting to Headquarters recently include: Col. Eugene B. Ely, FA, G-1 Sec.; Maj. Charles Askins, Jr., ORD, Ord. Sec. and Max G. Kocour, Inf, G-3 Sec. Officers relieved: Col. Devere P. Armstrong, FA, William I. Brady, CAC, Thomas J. Heavey, Cav, Edwin M. Sumner, Cav, Lt. Col. Donald MacGrain, CAC; Maj. Robert P. Cocklin, FA, Melvin T. Edmonds, GSC, Leonard E. Garrett, Inf, Eugene M. Lill, CAC, James R. Lynch, AGD, Lionel Mann, Inf, Harold D. Steward, Inf, and Capt. Palmer L. LaPlant, CAC.

Bureau of Naval Personnel—A drastic slowdown in promotions of Naval officers has been effected in the past few weeks, and very few if any promotions can be expected for some time. Administrative machinery formerly used for processing appointments has been dropped in place of a new and shorter procedure.

While all wartime promotions have been "temporary" in nature, made under a Temporary Promotion Act, the Navy wishes not to reduce ranks when the post-war return to permanent ranks is made. It is strongly felt that it is unfair both to the Service and the individual to educate an officer to a standard of living possible under the pay of one rank, and then cut both his rank and pay. It is felt that it would be better to deny a few promotions, if necessary, in order to prevent this.

For the same reason, officers now serving under spot promotions for special assignments will be returned to their lower, temporary ranks as expeditiously as possible. It can be expected that on change of assignment, officers serving under spots may not be reappointed as readily as in the past.

The curtailment of rank is designed to place a limit now on ranks of Naval officers, so that reductions in rank, if any, will be as few as possible, and so that planning for the new promotion system now being evolved may go ahead without an undue concern for the possibility of such demotions.

Signal Corps—Col. Albert F. Cassevant, a pioneer in Army development of radar, has been appointed Chief Signal Officer of Army Forces Western Pacific. Colonel Cassevant, a 1931 graduate of United States Military Academy, West Point, began radar experiments in the Signal Corps Laboratories in 1937 and late the following year demonstrated the first service test model radar accepted by the United States Army. Since September 1945, Colonel Cassevant has been signal officer of Base X (now PHIBCOM). He succeeds Col. James W. Green, Jr., who recently returned to the United States to study for his Doctor of Science degree in nuclear physics.

Officially opening the first peace-time Officers' Signal Corps Supply Course, to be conducted at Holabird Signal Depot by the newly-formed Signal Corps Supply School, Maj. Gen. H. C. Ingles, Chief, Signal Officer, and Brig. Gen. C. H. Arnold, Chief Procurement and Distribution Service of the same office, joined Col. Laurence Watts, Commanding Officer of Holabird, in greeting the first group of student officers in a brief ceremony on 17 Sept. The first student enrollment of seven officers comprises: Lt. Col. Maynard C. Raney, Capt. Emile W. Daniel, Jr., Capt. Burwell B. Jackson, Capt. Clayton H. Moore, Capt. Lester W. Kale, Maj. Wm. M. Copley, Jr., and 1st Lt. Hubbard T. Plunkett.

Army Chaplains Corps—Beginning 17 Sept. all base, division and corps chaplains of Eighth Army attended a two-day course of instruction in Yokohama on duties in connection with the occupation army. The group was addressed by Maj. Gen. Clovis E. Byers, Eighth Army chief of staff, Col. Frank P. Mackenzie, theater chaplain, and Col. A. E. Schanze, assistant chief of staff, G-1.

Y.; and Chaplain (Capt.) George L. Cutlip, Crozer Seminary, Chester, Pa. (Relieved Active Duty-30 July 1946).

Medical Department—Symptoms of Japanese B Encephalitis were compared with those of Poliomyelitis, the disease with which it is most often confused, by Dr. Albert B. Sabin, field director Virus and Rickettsial diseases, at a recent conference of 100 Army medical officers in the 42nd General Hospital, Tokyo. Dr. Sabin emphasized that in poliomyelitis, the paralysis is paramount, where on the other hand, it is absent or incidental in encephalitis.

Col. Phillip Cook, Eighth Army Surgeon, in addressing the medical officers, remarked the surprisingly low rate of disease in the Occupation area this Summer, but urged continued vigilance on the part of Army doctors.

Brig. Gen. James A. Bethea, Chief Surgeon, AFPAAC, outlined the Army's professional training program in the States. Col. Charles L. Gandy, commanding officer of the 42nd General, greeted doctors. The program was conducted by Col. Carl W. Tempel, medical consultant, AFPAAC.

Other speakers were 1st Lt. R. A. Morissette, 1st Lt. A. Davidson, 1st Lt. T. H. Williams, Jr., and 1st Lt. G. O. Wellaman, doctors at the 42nd General Hospital; and 1st Lt. J. H. Eisenhower, doctor at the 361st Station Hospital.

Quartermaster Corps—A new Army master bakers course will be opened 7 Oct. at the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces in Chicago.

Personnel selected will be enlisted men who have previously completed an Army bakers course and have demonstrated their proficiency in Army baking, or newly enlisted personnel who have had broad commercial baking experience.

Each Army will be authorized to select two men to attend the master bakers course which will be repeated after each eight-week period. Under the provisions of War Department Circular No. 265, 31 Aug. 1946, paragraph IV, requests for admission of personnel should be submitted through channels to The Quartermaster General, Washington 25, D. C.

Marine Corps—Award of the Presidential Unit Citation to a Marine regiment and the award of the Navy Unit Commendation to three aviation units and an engineer battalion were announced this week by Marine Corps Headquarters.

The Third Marine Regiment (Reinforced) was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation for heroic achievements during the Guam campaign from 21 July to 10 Aug. 1944. Reinforcing units of the Third Marines were announced as the Second Battalion, Ninth Marines; Company "C" of the Third Tank Battalion; Company "C" of the Nineteenth Marines and the Third Band Section.

Navy Unit Commendations were awarded to Marine Air Group 31, Marine Air Group 33 and Marine Night Fighter Squadron 533 for action at Okinawa during the period from 7 April to 30 June 1945.

Also receiving the Navy Unit Commendation was the First Separate Engineer Battalion which saw action at Guadalcanal, Tinian and Okinawa.

Headquarters Squadron at the air base at Cherry Point was redesignated Marine Air Casual Squadron-11, (MACSq-11) on 1 Aug.

Adjutant General's Department—Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, The Adjutant General, will return from leave Monday. Brig. Gen. H. B. Lewis, who has been Acting The Adjutant General, will reassume his position as head of the Personnel Bureau.

John Klein the Second, Col. Charles M. Christenberry the First and Col. Morris A. Wimberly the Seventh.

Lt. Col. J. C. D. Breckenridge has been ordered to the Staff and Faculty of The Adjutant General's School. Formerly Adjutant General of the 8th Infantry Division and of the task force which went into Norway, Col. Breckenridge recently returned from the Pacific where he served as AG of Operations Crossroads.

Col. W. M. Wright, Jr., of the Military Personnel Procurement Division, has returned from Philadelphia, West Point and New York City, on a trip made in connection with recruiting and the broadcasting of the Army football games.

His retirement will be effective 31 Oct. but, as yet, he has not decided where he will make his home. He has been succeeded by Col. Herbert M. Jones, formerly Adjutant General of the Island Command at Okinawa.

Information and Education—Establishment of a new Army Education Program school on Guam was the purpose of a conference in Guam several days ago of Information and Education officers from Pacific commands, Col. R. G. Gard, chief, I&E, AFPAC, announced.

The meeting was attended by Lt. Col. J. A. Jimerson, field service director, I&E, AFPAC; Lt. Col. J. G. Perry, A-1, 20th Air Force; Maj. W. S. Bazard, Western Pacific Base Command, AFMIDPAC; Capt. The conference report was approved by Brig. Gen. F. M. Hopkins, commanding general of the 20th Air Force.

The Guam Area School Center, expected to open around 1 Oct., will be an academic and vocational duty-time and off-duty-time school run by the 20th Air Force, to serve troops of the 20th Air Force, Air Garrison Force, Air Transport Command, and Guam Naval Base.

Infantry School—Classes in four modern foreign languages are underway at Fort Benning under the auspices of The Infantry School's Information and Education Office headed by Col. Walter M. Johnson. Both text books and instruction are free and, with the exception of the Russian class, the sessions are open to all Infantry School personnel. Instruction is now being given in Russian, German, Spanish and Chinese and if enough interest is shown, French and other languages will be taught.

Officers assigned to duty at the Infantry School during the week 14 to 21 Sept.: Col. Weldon S. Lewis; Maj. Robert E. Phelps, Jack B. Street, Pearson Yeager and Robert R. Hall; Capt. Ralph E. McClain, Carlos C. Alden and Carroll M. Forsyth; and 1st Lts. Lloyd H. Catter, Olin E. Smith, Eugene B. Blair and Derek R. Compton.

Bureau of Supplies and Accounts—The Supply Corps of the U. S. Navy is now the pattern after which Venezuela is developing a supply corps for its navy. Spanish-speaking Lt. (Jg) Cecil Suarez, (SC), USN, is assisting by translating many of the U. S. Navy's supply manuals.

The Bureau of Supplies and Accounts Manual is being translated for Venezuelan use, and a standard stock catalog is being made up from the new illustrated Catalog of Navy Material. Fourteen picked line officers are under special training at the Venezuelan Naval Academy at Malquetia studying the Supply Corps course patterned after the courses taught at the Navy Supply Corps School at Harvard University. The Venezuelan navy already has uniforms similar to those of the U. S. Navy, and it is expected that a special corps device will eventually be fashioned for Venezuelan supply officers.

U. S. Naval Academy—The appointment of Rear Adm. James L. Holloway to be Superintendent of the Naval Academy will send to Annapolis an expert on the subject of education of Naval officers. Not only has he served as Assistant Chief of Naval Personnel since last October, but his primary duty until a short time ago was as head of a board composed of civilian college presidents and Naval officers, which studied at great length the problems of procurement, undergraduate, and graduate education for Navy officers.

His board was known as the "Holloway Board," and its work was so well received that its recommendations became known as the "Holloway Plan," a major portion of which was incorporated into law providing for the training of officers in Naval ROTC units in the nation's colleges and universities. As recommended by the Holloway Board, there will be four sources of young officer candidates who will be educated and trained to serve in the peacetime Navy. Besides the NROTC units for general service and aviation officers, the Navy would continue to commission officers from colleges and the Naval Academy.

The Holloway Board carried on a thorough study of the Naval Academy, and recommended that it be continued in much the same form as at present, with retention of existing methods of appointments. A review of the Holloway Board's studies, as published by the Navy Department, declares:

"The standards of professional education at the Naval Academy have been high. The Holloway Board, however, has recognized the necessity for further academic improvement and has recommended a thorough-going revision of the Naval Academy curriculum. This revision would give stronger emphasis to basic and general education, rendering the instruction in strictly naval subjects more fundamental and less detailed."

The Holloway Board also dealt with postgraduate education, and pointed particularly to the need for establishing a General Line School for the large number of transferred Reserve and temporary officers and Naval Academy graduates who in the past four years have served in specialized assignments.

Much of the Holloway Plan is now being implemented. The assignment of Admiral Holloway to head the Academy should utilize fully the familiarity gained by this officer in his recent studies of officer personnel problems.

Lt. Col. Harold H. Morse has been recalled to active duty and assigned to the Savanna Ordnance Depot.

Maj. Earl S. Franklin has been reassigned from the Office, Chief of Ordnance to Blue Grass Ordnance Depot.

Travel Regulations—By an Act of Congress, railroad land grant laws are rescinded effective 1 Oct. Travel time immediately precedes date of reporting. Therefore, when the allowed travel time would require a departure on and after 1 Oct. reimbursement shall be made without regard to land grant deductions. Rail schedules shall be used for determining the date of necessary departure. Official mileage table remains in effect, but the land grant mileages quoted therein will be disregarded. U. S. Naval Travel Instructions are modified accordingly.

Field Artillery—The 129th Field Artillery Battalion, now with the Eighth Army, was awarded the presidential unit citation by a recent War Department General Order "for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy from 27 May to 24 Aug. 1944, at Aitape, New Guinea." The 129th was part of the 32nd division, which later served under the Eighth Army. The Aitape drive by the Japanese 8th Army, had it been successful, would have "endangered the whole strategy of the New Guinea campaign," according to the citation. The unit "maintained the finest traditions of the artillery, exhibiting only the best in training, discipline, and the delivery of accurate fire."

Judge Advocate General's Department—Arrival of 24 attorneys to join the staffs of the Eighth Army War Crimes Defense, and Judge Advocate sections, at Yokohama, is expected this month, according to Maj. Burton K. Phillips, chief of the Defense Section.

Seventeen of the new arrivals will be used by the defense section and seven by the Judge Advocate's section. Three of the attorneys are women. Major Phillips expressed the hope that arrival of the attorneys will help speed the trials of more than 600 alleged criminals yet to be tried by Eighth Army military commissions in Yokohama. It is hoped that the Yokohama trials can be brought to a close within fifteen months, Major Phillips said.

Office of Naval Research—Almost on the eve of his release to inactive duty, Rear Adm. Luis deFlorez, USNR, Deputy and Assistant Chief of Naval Research, this week criticized the curtailment of research activity in the Navy which is to become necessary as the result of the President's recent economy order. In a year when no money was appropriated for advances in ship design, Congress raised Navy Department estimates for research needs from $20,000,000 to $45,000,000 when it passed the Navy Appropriations Bill last spring. Now, Admiral deFlorez says, as part of the cut-back of $650,000,000 asked by the President, Naval Research has been obliged to curtail its study.

Admiral deFlorez has intended for some time to return to his prewar occupation as consulting engineer. He holds several patents and is regarded as an expert on safety devices in the oil-cracking business, and it was he who perfected many of the Navy's wartime training devices. Although he will assume inactive status on 1 Oct., he will continue his affiliation with the Navy in a civilian advisory capacity.

Women's Army Corps—The largest shipment of WACs to the European Theater in recent months arrived early this month at Bremerhaven, on the S. S. George Washington. About 717 enlisted women and 83 officers were in this first contingent of approximately 1,100 WACs, previously slated for the European Theater; the remainders are expected soon.

Upon disembarking the women were transported by train to a nearby replacement depot, where they remained 48 hours while awaiting their assignments.

Of the group, 65 officer personnel and 700 enlisted personnel have had no prior service in the European Theater.

Navy Day Cachets—Distinctive cachets in recognition of Navy Day will be applied to all letters mailed aboard six naval vessels on 27 Oct. The battleship Missouri, the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, the cruiser Astoria, the destroyer Frank Knox, the submarine Flying Fish, and the amphibious flagship Taconic will apply the special rubber stamp souvenir markings.

Philatelists who desire to have covers mailed aboard the above ships should forward self-addressed stamped envelopes to the Director of Public Information, Navy Department, Washington 25, D. C., who will forward the envelopes to the ships specified by the collector for application of the cachet, cancellation and mailing through the postal service to collectors. The collector may send envelopes for forwarding to any or all of the ships concerned. All six cachets will be different in design.

Clear space three inches to the left of the address is required for stamping the cachet. The deadline for receipt of envelopes in the Office of Public Information is 15 Oct.

Military Police—1st Lt. Greeta M. ("Johnnie") Johnson, the only woman commissioned in the Corps of Military Police, visited Tokyo recently on her way from Washington, D. C., to Seoul, Col. William G. Purdy, chief provost marshal, AFPAC, announced.

The only woman wearing the crossed pistols of the Military Police, Lieutenant Johnson comes from the Personnel Section, Provost Marshal General's Office, Washington, to an assignment in the headquarters of Maj. Gen. Archer L. Lerch, commanding general of the Military Government in Korea.

Army Transportation Corps—A Civil Transportation Section, to advise SCAP on the use and rehabilitation of water and land transportation facilities in Japan, has been established as a special staff section of GHQ, SCAP.

Brig. Gen. Frank S. Besson, Jr., recently named to head the AFPAC transportation section, which handles policy matters for all military land and water transportation, also will be chief of the new Civil Transportation Section. The new section will be the policy-making body for coordinating the entire Japanese transportation system.

Concerning the recent death of Capt. Donald C. Bingham, USN, Ret., an officer who was associated with him writes us as follows:

"In the death of Capt. Donald C. Bingham, U. S. Navy, Retired, (USNA 1902) those who were in the Atlantic Fleet in the 1913-1916 period have had brought again to their minds the immense service done for naval gunnery by this able officer. As gunnery officer of the North Dakota, under command of the then Capt. C. P. Plunkett, Bingham developed a system of observation and checking which he brought into the Fleet when he moved on to Admiral Mayo's staff. By careful checking of all drills, by analysis of the results of the drills and by carefully planned and observed rehearsals of target practices faulty methods were eliminated and the improvement in fleet gunnery was immediate and substantial.

"Sims and Ridley McLean were responsible for the introduction of improved training procedure in the early years of the century. Bingham followed up their work by making it imperative that all commanding and gunnery officers analyze the defects and shortcomings of their gunnery material and personnel. He overcame much opposition from seniors by his firm belief that only by the most careful and thorough observation could all the weaknesses of a highly competitive gunnery program be discovered and eliminated.

"That our Fleet could shoot well in the Second World War was due in considerable measure to the zeal, energy and ability with which Donald Bingham impressed his ideas on the Fleet in the period immediately before the First World War."

A well-known expert in naval and commercial shipping circles, Capt. Paul Foley, USN-Ret., died 5 Sept., while dining at the New York Yacht Club. He was buried 9 Sept. at the U. S. Naval Academy cemetery.

Captain Foley was born in Washington, D. C., 20 May 1878. Appointed to the Naval Academy in 1896, he served at sea as a Midshipman during the Spanish-American War, participating in the Battle of Santiago and the capture of San Juan. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1900.

While commanding successively the early torpedo boats USS MacDonough, Talbot and Bagley, he was an instructor at the Naval Academy. After serving as Executive Officer in the first USS Yankee, he commanded her sister ship, the first USS Dixie, in which he transported Marine Expeditionary Forces, and helped establish a system of mobile tenders for destroyers and submarines.

In 1911 he served on the Navy Dept. Board of Inspection of Survey, as Secretary to the General Board, and as aide to Admiral George Dewey. At the outbreak of World War I, he commanded the Asiatic Torpedo Flotilla and Naval Station at Cavite, P. I. In 1918 he became Director of Operations for the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the U. S. Shipping Board for four years, later serving at the Charleston, S. C., navy yard and on board the USS Oklahoma and USS Prometheus. From 1923 to 1926 Captain Foley was Technical Aide to the Secretary of the Navy and Director of the Naval Research Laboratory, Bellevue, D. C. He retired in 1926 with 30 years' service.

After his retirement, Captain Foley served as consultant to various corporations, and established bunkering stations at 24 ports around the world. He acted as consultant in determining the basis and rate of tolls at the Panama Canal and prepared the tonnage certificate in present use at the Canal.

Captain Foley is survived by his widow, Mrs. Josephine Drake Foley of Washington, D. C., and by two sons, Capt. Paul Foley, Jr., USN, now on duty with the staff of Commander Joint Task Force One, and Comdr. Francis D. Foley, USN, Air Officer on the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt; a grandson, and a grand-daughter.

Capt. David Wooster Todd, USN-Ret., died 21 Aug., in the Naval Hospital at Chelsea, Mass., after an illness of two months.

Captain Todd was born in Round Valley, Calif., on 29 June 1874. Appointed to the U. S. Naval Academy in 1891, he was graduated in 1895. He served on various ships and was an instructor at the Naval Academy. From 1911 to 1913 he was in charge of the Radio Division, Bureau of Engineering at the Navy Department, and assisted in the formulation of the first bill to regulate radio telegraphy. In 1912 he was sent as a delegate to the International Radio Conference at London. From 1916 to 1919, Captain Todd was Director of Naval Communications at the Navy Department and in addition organized and administered the United States cable censorship. During his last four cruises, he commanded the Monterey, Dixie, Pittsburgh and the battleships New York and Nevada. His last command was the Naval Training Station in Newport. He was retired in 1930.

Captain Todd was an officer of the Legion of Honor, a graduate of the Naval War college and a member of the Society of the Cincinnati.

Financial Digest

The stock market this week showed gains over the previous week, gains of from one to four points recorded in key industrial issues eliminating earlier losses. The reinvestment of funds realized from tax selling and the activity of bargain hunters who have awaited an auspicious market is considered in brokerage circles to have been the source of mid-week buying.

The Department of commerce reported this week that net debts in the United States, private and governmental, rose $35,400,000,000 in 1945. The total net debt stood at $400,466,000,000 at the end of 1945 as compared with $365,115,000,000 at the end of 1944, and $204,446,000,000 at the end of 1941. The wartime growth of the Federal debt accounted almost entirely for the doubling of the net debt from 1941 through 1945, but other types of debt diminished in a period when the Federal Government assumed a major role in borrowing and extension of credit.

Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said this week that the Treasury Department is seeking to maintain the cost of servicing the national debt at the current rate of $5 billion per annum. Indications are, Secretary Snyder said, that the Treasury this year will have revenues about $3 billion above expenditures. He explained that although the actual budget figures will show a deficit of approximately $1,900,000,000, certain non-cash expenditures are included.

Preston Delano, Controller of the Currency, said in his annual report made this week that some long-term loans that commercial banks have been making are virtually a substitute for orthodox long-term investment banking procedures. He emphasized that "thoughtful study" should be given this development.

Merchant Marine

Army Engineers will develop and construct five, and possibly six, permanent Reserve Fleet sites for the Maritime Commission at an estimated cost of $10,000,000. Approximately 2,500 merchant vessels will be maintained in permanent reserve, according to information available.

The five assured sites will be located in the James River, at Lee Hall, Va.; Brunswick River, Wilmington, N. C.; Tensas River, Mobile, Ala.; The Neches River, Beaumont, Texas; and Suisan Bay, Benecia, Calif. The sixth site under consideration is one of two located in the Columbia River area.

James River Site

The James River site can accommodate 600 to 700 vessels. At Wilmington, where dredging is now close to 50 per cent completed, a maximum of 390 vessels can be moored. An anchorage near Mobile will be developed to hold more than 700 vessels. The Neches River site will hold approximately 500 ships, and the Suisan Bay location can accommodate approximately 500 vessels, and now has about 360 moored in it.

These locations do not include certain sites which will be utilized for a period of two or three years each while disposition is being made of certain over-age, damaged, or unwanted types of vessels.

Sales to Veterans

Surplus small vessels up to 65 feet long will be offered for sale to veterans of World War II periodically at individual prices, the United States Maritime Commission announced this week. Sale of these vessels with preference to veterans is made possible by Public Law 716, 79th Congress. This law also provides preference for members of the United States Merchant Marine.

Heretofore the Commission has been required to sell each vessel by competitive bids to the general public without regard to veteran's preference.

All vessels sold in this manner will be priced at fair market values and will be sold on an "as is, where is" basis.

Sales under this program will include many desirable craft well suited to small commercial enterprises and various types of water transportation. Also included are most of the pleasure craft which are in large demand.

The first announcement under this program is expected to be released early in October and will include a variety of commercial and pleasure craft located on the East, Gulf and West Coasts, also the Great Lakes.

Pearl Harbor Report

The officers in the intelligence and war plans divisions of the War and Navy Departments handling matters in the Pacific had a particular responsibility with respect to the magic intelligence just as the Hawaiian commanders had a particular responsibility for the defense of the fleet and the Hawaiian coastal frontier. It was the duty of these officers to evaluate and disseminate the magic in the form of estimates, as originally obtained, or otherwise. This responsibility they failed to discharge with that high degree of skill and imagination which this intelligence warranted.

In the case of the War Plans Division of the War Department, once it had warned General Short of hostilities, issued order in contemplation of this contingency, and directed him to report measures taken, it thereby assumed responsibility for reviewing the report of action and advising the commanding general in the event the measures taken by him were not in accordance with those desired.

While the report submitted by General Short was ambiguous and disarmingly terse, it was the duty of the War Plans Division through the exercise of proper supervision to require a reply reflecting with clarity that there had been satisfactory compliance with the departmental orders.

Hawaii was but one of many points of concern to General Marshall, the Chief of Staff, and Admiral Stark, the Chief of Naval Operations. As stated by the Chief of Staff, "the only place we had any assurance about was Hawaii, and for that reason we had less concern about Hawaii because we had worked on it very industriously, we had a tremendous amount of correspondence about it, and we felt reasonably secure at that one point."

Unity of Command

The evidence adduced in the course of the various Pearl Harbor investigations reveals the complete inadequacy of command by mutual cooperation where decisive action is of the essence. Both the Army and Navy commanders in Hawaii failed to coordinate and integrate their combined facilities for defense in the crucial days between 27 November and 7 December 1941. While they had been able over a period of time to conceive admirable plans for the defense of the Hawaiian Coastal Frontier consistent with the system of mutual cooperation, when the time came for the implementation of these plans they remained hollow and empty contracts that were never executed. Had the responsible commanders conferred together in such manner as to reach joint decisions consonant with their plans, the system of mutual cooperation would have proved adequate. It is clear, however, that this system presents unnecessary and inevitable opportunities for personal failures and shortcomings. The ubiquitous tendency to "let George do it," to assume the other fellow will take care of the situation, is an inseparable part of command by mutual cooperation.

The tragic assumptions made by Admiral Kimmel and General Short concerning what the other was doing are a manifestation of this fact. Each was the victim of the natural human reluctance to pry into what is regarded as another's business. The commander in chief assumed that the Army would be on a full alert—the antiaircraft, the aircraft warning service, and the interceptor command—yet he did not inquire to determine whether this was the case, apparently because it might not "sit very well" with General Short. The commanding general assumed that the Navy would be conducting reconnaissance which would afford him adequate warning in order properly to alert his command. Yet he did not inquire as to whether the Navy was conducting the reconnaissance upon which he was relying for his protection, presumably because he felt such an inquiry might be "resented" by Admiral Kimmel.

The conduct of operations in this state of joint oblivion was possible in a command by mutual cooperation; but none of these false and unwarranted assumptions could have obtained under unity of command. Under the latter system a single commander would have been charged with complete responsibility; all of the warnings, intelligence, and orders would have been his to interpret, estimate, and implement; it would have been his duty only to effect a state of readiness commensurate with the realities of the situation. Conceivably, a single commander might have arrived at the same estimate as did Admiral Kimmel and General Short; namely, that Hawaii would not be attacked. But such a decision would have been clear-cut and devoid of all the anomalous and incompatible assumptions that are in strange contradiction of the estimate made by the Hawaiian commanders that their outpost was safe. He would not have arrived at a conclusion concerning the defensive measures required on a fallacious assumption with respect to the decisions and defensive measures of someone else, nor could he have interpreted the same order at once in two different and inconsistent ways.

Furthermore, in a command by mutual cooperation there is the unfailing likelihood of conflicting and overlapping prerogatives. In the case of the plans for the defense of the Hawaiian Coastal Frontier, it was the joint mission of the Army and Navy to hold Oahu as a main outlying naval base, each being specifically charged with supporting the other. It was necessary that the local commanders jointly agree upon the existence of the appropriate emergency as a condition precedent to the detailed allocation of specific missions as between the two services. The Navy was primarily responsible for distant reconnaissance and long-range attacks against hostile vessels, while the Army was charged with short-range defense. In the case of each of these defensive measures, one service was charged with supporting the forces of the other service having primary responsibility; and particularly, in the case of air operations, the service having the primary responsibility was to control the available planes of the other service. This was a sliding and shifting arrangement with respect to primary responsibility depending on the nature of the attack. The mutual agreement required by such operations would necessarily be forthcoming only when a particular type of attack was sufficiently imminent as to suggest the advisability of the Army or the Navy, as the case might be, assuming primary responsibility to meet the attack.

The completely ineffective liaison between the Army and the Navy in Hawaii at a time when the fullest exchange of intelligence was absolutely imperative dictates that military and naval intelligence, particularly, must be consolidated. The extraordinary anomalous situation of the one hand not knowing what the other hand knew or was doing should never be permitted to exist again.

Invocation of unity of command was within the scope of the authority of the responsible commanders in Hawaii, upon agreement as to the service that should exercise command, or of the Secretaries of War and Navy, acting jointly. Inasmuch as there was a complete failure of the system of mutual cooperation on 7 Dec. 1941, and unity of command had not been effected by or imposed upon the Hawaiian commanders, it is proper to inquire as to the reason for unity of command not having been invoked at least as soon as it was known that hostilities were possible at any moment.

The evidence reflects that during the period from 27 Nov. to 7 Dec. the leading subject of conferences between Admiral Kimmel and General Short was the question and near-dispute as to whether the Army or the Navy should exercise command over the islands of Wake and Midway after the Marines on these islands were relieved by Army troops. No agreement was concluded in this regard before the outbreak of war. If neither would agree to the other's commanding Wake or Midway, it is not in the least surprising or unexpected that neither one of the commanders would have agreed to subordinate himself and his entire command to the other.

In the case of Washington, the matter of establishing unity of command at our outposts was under consideration and discussion by the War and Navy Departments throughout the year 1941 and especially during the few weeks prior to 7 Dec. No decision, however, was reached concerning unity of command at Hawaii or at any of our outposts until the responsible officials were confronted by war with powerful adversaries on two fronts and the barrier of departmental prerogative had been severely jolted by the Pearl Harbor disaster. The Joint Board of the Army and Navy during 1941 had considered specific proposals for unity of command as made by each of the services but prior to 7 Dec. no effective agreement was reached as to which service should exercise command at a particular outpost. It generally appears, however, that it was agreed the system of mutual cooperation in the Caribbean, at Panama, and at Hawaii should be replaced by unity of command. The Navy proposed that command in the Caribbean be vested in the Navy; at Panama in the Army, except when major naval forces were based there; and at Hawaii in the Navy, except when no major naval forces were based there. The Army, on the other hand, proposed unity of command in all coastal frontiers, command to rest in the Army except when a major portion of the fleet was operating against comparable hostile forces within the range of possible support by Army aviation and when the Army and Navy commanders should agree to transfer command from one to the other.

In view of these conflicting proposals following virtually a year of discussion, General Gerow, chief of War Plans in the War Department, recommended to the Chief of Staff on 17 Nov. 1941, that the system of command in the outposts remain by mutual cooperation, thereby suggesting abandonment of the idea of unity of command. In testifying before the committee, General Gerow explained his action by stating he thought the only way to have effective unity of command was for the heads of the Army and Navy to say that "So and so is in command, and he is in command from now on." He observed that—"You cannot vary that command from day to day depending on what the operation is. One man must be responsible for preparing that place for operation, and he must be responsible for commanding it after he has prepared it." He pointed out that the Joint Army-Navy planning committee had contemplated an arrangement whereby command would shift back and forth from the Army to the Navy and from the Navy to the Army depending on the nature of attack or defense. General Gerow said that he thought the system of mutual cooperation would be better than such a continual switching of command. He commented:

"I did not think either the Army or Navy Planning Group would agree to say wholeheartedly 'You take everything and it will be agreeable to us.' Neither would agree to that." He agreed that it would be necessary that "somebody at the top had to knock their heads together and tell them what to do." General Marshall epitomized the essentially human proclivities characterizing the situation:

"I have said this before; I will repeat it again. It is a very simple thing to have unity of command if you give it to the other man. But that also applied in all of our dealings with the British and among ourselves and always will continue to be so.

The ultimate result was that no agreement was reached between the War and Navy Departments before Pearl Harbor for the establishment of unity of command in our military and naval outposts. The factors and considerations attending eventual invocation of unity of command were expressed by the Chief of Staff in a letter dated 20 Dec. 1941, to General Short's successor, Gen. Delos C. Emmons.

The foregoing considerations evince more than mere reluctance and procrastination toward effecting action by command rather than by joint agreement; they reveal that inherent in our system of separate services there exists the basic deficiency of conflicting interests which precipitate serious and unnecessary obstacles to the solution of pressing military problems. It is to be necessarily noted, however, that while considering the advisability of unity of command, Washington was assuming that the system of mutual cooperation was working within its limitations and that local commanders were fully discharging their responsibilities. It was only in the wake of the Pearl Harbor disaster that the inherent and intolerable weaknesses of command by mutual cooperation were exposed.

As earlier indicated, the failure to integrate and coordinate Army-Navy efforts in Hawaii appears to have been attributable to a feeling on the part of each commander that he would intrude upon the prerogatives of the other and thereby invite similar intrusion if he inquired as to what the sister service was doing. In Washington, the failure to impose unity of command was occasioned by the inability of the Army and the Navy as entities to agree upon a basis for unified command.

Slur on Negroes Denied

General Joseph T. McNarney, commander of United States Forces in the European Theater, declared last week, according to Berlin dispatches, that the Negro soldier needs wider opportunities to develop leadership and denied a statement attributed to him in a newspaper that as a soldier the Negro was a failure.

Referring to a statement made in a conversation with Truman K. Gibson, Jr., during the latter's inspection of Negro troops in Italy last year as an aide to the Secretary of War, General McNarney said:

"It was intended as a frank admission that the leadership qualities evident were below the standards required for the efficient performance of certain types of combat duties, and an equally frank statement that for some time to come the Negro soldier would need new and wider opportunities in order to develop the standards of leadership required."

General McNarney added:

"Informally, I agreed with Mr. Gibson's view and suggested that since the Negro, through no fault of his own, had been unable to find in America during the last 100 years completely equal opportunities to develop his full social and economic potential, it would appear profitable if, for the next hundred years, American Negroes could be afforded the opportunities which Mr. Gibson claimed they had been denied.

"My comments were in no way intended or offered as ridicule, either to the American Negro at home or the Negro soldier in the service."

Release of Army Officers

A new policy for the release of officers from service was announced this week by the War Department. In announcing the new separation criteria it was said the move was made because of the "stringent budgetary limitations under which the Army is now operating, which make imperative a reduction in the strength of its officer personnel, and because of the desirability of having a completely volunteer officer corps."

The new separation policy permits the release of all officers, including officers of the Women's Army Corps, who will become eligible under current separation criteria for separation by 30 June 1947, with the exception of certain Medical Department officers, critical specialists, recent Officer Candidate School graduates and officers with dependents overseas or en route overseas.

A second new policy provides that officers will receive their terminal leave within the period of time for which they had signed, excepting only those officers in overseas stations who cannot be replaced sufficiently early.

Early this year officers on active duty were directed to sign statements as to the length of time they desired to remain on duty. According to the length of time, the officers were placed in the appropriate one of five categories. Regulations setting up the categories were later amended to include eight possibilities of choice.

The eight categories are:

- I—To continue on active duty for an unlimited length of time.
- II—To continue on active duty until 30 June 1947.
- III—To continue on active duty until 31 Dec. 1944.
- IV—To continue on active duty for a period agreed on by the officer and his commander, but not for less than sixty days and not extending beyond 30 Nov. 1944.
- V—To be relieved from active duty at the earliest possible time.
- VI—To continue on active duty for an additional 12 months.
- VII—To continue on active duty for an additional 18 months.
- VIII—To continue on active duty for an additional 24 months.

New Criteria

The following are the new criteria:

- Officers in the Zone of Interior
1. Officers other than Medical Department officers: Category V officers who will complete 24 months' service by 30 June 1947, and all category III and IV officers will be processed for separation immediately in order to complete all service, including terminal leave, prior to 31 Dec. 1946.
Category II officers will be released immediately unless they desire retention until 30 June 1947, but in any case they will be processed for separation in sufficient time to complete their terminal leave before 30 June 1947. Category I officers who elect to serve until 30 June 1947 will not be given a permanent change of station except in cases of absolute necessity.
Category I, VI, VII and VIII officers who have completed 24 months' total active duty may request relief from active duty. These requests must be initiated prior to 1 Nov. 1946. Such officers in these categories will be separated as rapidly as military requirements will permit, but in each case they will be released in sufficient time to complete all service including terminal leave by 31 March 1947.

Officers in Overseas Theaters
2. In overseas theaters the following criteria apply:

- Category V officers who complete 24 months' service by 31 Dec. 1946, and all category III and IV officers will be returned to the Zone of Interior for separation not later than 31 Dec. 1946. Terminal leave may or may not have been completed by that date.
Category V officers who will complete 24 months' service after 31 Dec. 1946 and prior to 30 June 1947 will be returned to the Zone of Interior for separation in sufficient time to complete their terminal leave not later than the day on which their 24 months' service is completed. If desired by theater commanders, these officers may be returned immediately for separation.

Category II officers desiring release may be returned immediately to the Zone of Interior for separation or may be retained in the theater until replacements are available, but in any event they must be returned to the United States for separation in sufficient time to complete their terminal leave by 30 June 1947.

Category I, VI, VII and VIII officers (except those with dependents overseas and those whose applications for the travel of their dependents to an overseas theater have been approved by the theater commander) who have completed 24 months' active duty may apply for release. They may either be returned to the United States for immediate separation or they may be held by the the-ter commander until suitable replacements are available. Requests of these officers for releases must be initiated before 1 Dec. 1947.

Scarce Category Officers

Scarce category officers, i.e., machine records officer, machine records control officer, officers and warrant officers with experience or training in statutory renegotiation or in contract termination and property disposal activities may be retained in the service until replaced, provided they are utilized in their specialty. In no case can they be retained longer than six months beyond the date on which they would normally be separated or would arrive in the United States for separation under the new criteria.

Officers with linguistic ability who are being utilized in such capacity will be separated not later than upon completion of 42 months' service including their terminal leave, unless they volunteer for longer extended active duty. Officer linguists not being used full time in their language specialty will be separated as are other officers not in scarce categories.

Officer Candidate School graduates will complete the term of commissioned service for which they contracted before they are separated.

Officers whose dependents have arrived or will arrive in the overseas theaters will serve a minimum of one year in the theater after the dependents have arrived before becoming eligible for separation.

Officers will be separated in the same relative priorities as would have obtained prior to publication of these new criteria, insofar as the military requirements will permit.

Officers on ships still in United States ports, those in ports of embarkation, depots, or being processed for overseas shipment, will be given an opportunity to request separation if they are eligible under the new criteria. If they request retention in the service rather than separation, they will sign statements to that effect.

With certain exceptions, category V Medical Department officers, including ASTP graduates, will normally be separated or arrive in the continental United States for separation upon completion of the following lengths of service, which includes terminal leave:

- Medical Corps—24 months' service.
 - Dental Corps—30 months' service.
 - Veterinary Corps, Sanitary Corps, Medical Administrative Corps—36 months' service.
 - Medical Department Dietitians and Physical Therapists—24 months' service.
 - Army Nurse Corps—14 months' service.
- The excepted officers are as follows: Category V Medical Corps officers with primary or secondary classification A, B, or C in the following military occupational specialties, and who are assigned to duties utilizing their specialty, will be separated upon completion of 36 months' service: 3101, 3105, 3106, 3107, 3112, 3125, 3126, 3130, 3139, 3150, 3152, 3153, 3159, 3300, and 3325. Release of such specialists, however, is subject to the right of the Surgeon General to retain by individual selection a relatively few critically-needed specialists where it is essential to the proper care of patients.

All Medical Department officers surplus to the requirements of major commands or returned to the Zone of Interior from overseas who are within 60 days of eligibility for release will be separated under the provisions of Section II, War Department Circular 200, 1945, as surplus officers.

General Provisions for Separation

Officers eligible for separation who have been found to be physically incapacitated for all types of military duty may elect to be retained on active duty in patient status pending final War Department action on their respective cases.

Length of service will be computed to include total honorable active commissioned and enlisted service, continuous or interrupted, since 14 Sept. 1940. Time lost under Article of War 107 will not be included.

Officers who signed the special category in connection with travel of dependents to overseas theaters will be considered as category VI officers (to serve 12 months from time of signing).

Officers are permitted to change their voluntary statements from any category to a category VII (to serve an additional 18 months); category VIII (to serve an additional 24 months); or category I (to serve for an indefinite period), providing such change results in a longer period of service, and also providing that the officer, if a major or above, has an efficiency index of at least 40, and if a captain or lower has an efficiency index of at least 35.

Officers who do not upgrade their category will be separated in accordance with the new criteria. Officers who do sign a category for a longer length of service may request the same arm or service in which they are serving, and if such request is not granted they are eligible for separation.

of active duty he may have performed as a Reserve, National Guard, or AUS officer prior to his acceptance of a commission in the Regular Army.

b. At any time during the first 3 years subsequent to his being originally commissioned in the Regular Army, the commission of any officer, whose conduct and performance of duty is such as not to justify his retention as an officer of the Army, or whose retention as an officer of the Army is not justified for other good and sufficient reasons, may be revoked by the Secretary of War. Such action by the Secretary of War is final and conclusive.

3. PURPOSE. The purpose of these regulations is to outline the procedure for accomplishing in appropriate cases the revocation of commissions of officers (within the first 3 years of appointment in the Regular Army, referred to hereinafter as probationary officers, as provided in paragraphs 1 and 2).

4. CAUSES. In general, revocation of commission will be considered for any of the following or similar or related causes:

a. Record of subversive activities or associations.

b. Material misrepresentation of facts in the personal history statement which, if known, would have been cause for rejection or otherwise have precluded appointment.

c. Should any second lieutenant originally commissioned in the Regular Army after 1 July 1949 marry within 1 year subsequent to the date of his original commission, such marriage will be considered cause for revocation of his commission.

d. Further, revocation of commission will be considered for any of the following or similar or related causes:

(1) Habitual intemperance or recurrent instances of other personal misconduct.

(2) Repeated failure to meet personal financial obligations or other mismanagement of personal affairs which reflect discredit upon the military service.

(3) Demonstrated inability to exercise the necessary leadership of command required of an officer of the Army.

(4) Lack of or inability to acquire the technical proficiency required in an officer of the Army of his grade.

(5) Inability to discharge properly assignments commensurate with his rank and experience.

(6) Manner of performance of duty below the standard required of Army officers of same grade and length of service.

(7) Any other cause which the War Department may prescribe.

5. These regulations are not intended to be disciplinary and procedures prescribed herein are not to be used in lieu of court-martial action or action under the provisions of Articles of War 104; however, conviction by court-martial for a major offense, recurrent convictions by court-martial for minor offenses or recurrent punishments under Article of War 104 may be cause for taking action under paragraph 4.

6. EFFICIENCY REPORTS. Efficiency Reports (WD AGO Form 67) will be rendered on probationary officers in accordance with AR 600-185. In addition, an efficiency report will be rendered each time a manner of performance rating is entered on the officer's qualification card.

7. BOARDS OF OFFICERS. The boards of officers which will be appointed to take action under these regulations are as follows:

a. Reclassification boards.

(1) The purpose of these boards under these regulations is to afford a fair and impartial hearing to any officer who is selected to show cause whether he should be permitted to retain his Regular Army commission by receiving evidence and making findings and recommendations as to the officer's fitness to retain his Regular Army commission.

(2) These boards will be convened under the provisions of paragraph 11, AR 605-230. Each board as outlined in paragraph 11b(1), AR 605-230, will be composed of a majority of Regular Army officers, senior, in both temporary and permanent grade to the officer to be investigated.

b. Board of final review.

(1) The purpose of this board is to review each case in which the officer has been recommended for removal from the active list by a reclassification board, and to make recommendations as to whether or not the officer concerned should be retained on the active list.

(2) The board will be convened by the Secretary of War at such place and time as he deems necessary and will be composed of not less than five general officers of the Regular Army and one or more recorders without vote.

8. PROCEDURE FOR REVOCATION OF COMMISSION. a. The Commanding General, Army Air Forces, Army Ground Forces, and chiefs, administrative and technical services, will review semiannually on 1 January and 1 July of each year, the records of all probationary officers under their respective jurisdiction to determine those whose retention on the active list is not considered desirable. The above commanders will take necessary action to reassign the officers concerned to a new organization, to new duties, to new training or schooling whenever such action is in the interests of the service, or will refer the case for action under the provisions of AR 605-230 except in the cases of officers detailed to or assigned to duty with another arm or service who are recommended for revocation of commission. Such recommendations with allied records in the case of officers of the ground arms or air forces will be referred to the major force commander concerned, and in the case of officers of the services, to the appropriate chief of administrative or technical service for recommendation. When the commander or chief of service concurs with the original recommendation for revocation of commission, reclassification proceedings will be initiated by the authority having command jurisdiction over the officer concerned. However, when the commander or chief of service does not concur with the original recommendation, the officer concerned will be transferred back to his basic arm or service for assignment.

b. When a field commander determines that the commission of a probationary officer should be revoked under any of the causes set forth above, he will take action under the provisions of AR 605-230.

c. Reclassification boards will make findings for each cause of revocation listed for their investigation in their directive. They may also return findings for any other cause of revocation, listed under paragraph 4, on which in their investigation evidence has been produced. In making their findings, they will consider such evidence as may properly come before the board under AR 420-5. Such evidence will include records furnished by The Adjutant General or prior cadet, enlisted, or officer service in any component, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, or United States Military Academy.

d. When the recommendation of the reclassification board is that the officer's Regular Army commission should be revoked and the convening authority of the board concurs, or when other action is recommended by the board and the convening authority is of the opinion that the officer's Regular Army commission should be revoked, the records in the case will be forwarded to The Adjutant General for referral to the board of final review for appropriate action. In cases where the recommendation of the reclassification board is other than revocation of commission and the convening authority concurs, normal reclassification proceedings will be followed.

e. When a reclassification board has recommended revocation of an officer's commission, he will be permitted to appear in person or be represented by counsel before the board of final review in his case and shall be at all stages of the proceedings allowed full access to and furnished copies of records and data pertinent to his case.

f. After consideration by the board of final review, the cases with the recommendation of the board will be forwarded to the Secretary of War for final action. In the case of officers recommended for revocation of commission by the board, the action of the Secretary of War will be final and conclusive.

9. RESCISSION. WD Circular 152, 1946, pertaining to the foregoing subject, is rescinded.

Demotion of Officers

In response to an inquiry, The Adjutant General has ruled:

"If a hospitalized officer (other than combat wounded) scheduled demotion refuses to accept a new appointment in the next lower grade and requests separation, retirement, or if he is subject to reversion to his permanent grade in lieu thereof, he will be held in his present grade until completion of hospitalization and then processed under pertinent directives."

5. Laundry — This is a big problem. Lack of skilled personnel has complicated laundry service. However, hospital laundry is given special consideration.

6. Housing — In Japan many hotels have been taken over by the Army to house both military personnel and their dependents. Nurses are comfortably housed in the majority of cases.

7. Uniforms — Nurses continue to experience difficulty in replacing worn items of clothing. This is especially true with regards to summer uniforms, shoes and seersucker work uniforms.

8. Personnel — I heard many complaints because of the shortage of trained enlisted personnel in the hospitals. The number of nurses seems adequate for the present.

9. Civilian Help — Civilian doctors, nurses and maintenance workers are abundant in Japan. In Korea, Okinawa and Guam, civilian help is difficult to obtain largely due to demand for workers in industry. In the Philippines, the greatest problem, aside from language, is in retaining help once it is trained because of the shortage of skilled labor.

On my tour, I was granted an interview with General of the Army MacArthur. During our discussion he commended all Army nurses who served in his command from 8 Dec. 1941, until the present time for their outstanding service.

While in Japan, my party was invited to visit the China Base Command headquarters in Shanghai. Lieutenant Colonel Phillips, and Lieutenant Colonel Dreisback, Preventive Medicine consultant on the staff of General Martin, accompanied me to China. At a dinner given by Colonel McConkie and his staff at the 172nd General Hospital in Shanghai, I had the pleasure of meeting The Surgeon General of the Chinese Army and Mrs. Lim, Lieutenant Colonel Chow, Chief Nurse Chinese Army. Later General and Mrs. Lim and Colonel Chow tendered us a full-course Chinese dinner.

Again in the Philippines, I was guest of honor at a special party arranged by Philippine Army nurses in General Hospital No. 1. In Manila, Lieutenant Colonel Bryant, MC, gave a reception at the Army and Navy Club after which a large group of medical officers honored me at dinner.

I was accompanied to Korea by Brigadier General Bethea, who had recently arrived as Surgeon, AFPAC, and his Plans and Operation's Officer, Colonel Fitzpatrick.

On my return, I stopped briefly in Honolulu but was pressed for time and did not inspect all the facilities for nurses there.

Marine Officers' Leave

A list of officers on active duty in the Marine Corps, with amounts of accumulated leave due, has been completed by Headquarters, and will be published as a Letter of Instruction. Such a list will inform officers of amounts of leave they have for settlement under the Armed Forces Leave Act.

Sports Front

If you had a brief chat with Captain Tom Hamilton, guardian of the Naval Academy's football destinies, it wouldn't take you long to realize why football coaches are the most proficient blues shouters to be found outside 52nd Street.

It isn't an act, at least not in Hamilton's case. There is, in fact, a far more logical explanation than the generally accepted one of warding off Monday morning quarterbacks in advance.

When you play a stronger than average schedule, which anyone will admit the Navy is doing this year, the majority of your attention is devoted to the strength of your opponents, and how to stop said strength. Bob Fenimore of Oklahoma A.&M. and Buddy Young of Illinois may be swell football players, but if you don't have to tangle with them, they don't look as tough as Davis and Blanchard.

After dwelling on such pleasant prospects as having the last two named gallop through your line all afternoon, you tend to have a fairly cautious outlook. Of course, true to the tradition of the academics, Hamilton hopes that West Point—and its backfield menaces in particular—have a bang-up season, play their best game of the year against Navy, and get licked. But understandably, he won't predict it.

Indeed he won't predict anything about Navy except that the season will be a rugged one. We found that out when Hamilton was asked if he thought there were any teams on the schedule that might turn out to be sleepers—clubs that might look a trifle easy on paper but could be counted on for a few surprises come game time.

Hamilton looked incredulous. It was suggested that Penn State might be a case in point.

"What do you mean?" he gasped. "Penn State's tough. You watch the scores coming out of that part of the country. Why, they've got a couple of tackles that weigh around 240..."

Don't pay too much attention to the comparative scores of the series. Teams against Villanova, warns Hamilton. Ordinarily they might serve a useful purpose to the football dopests, but the weather at West Point on the 21st threw all form out the window. It's simple to win football games when your opponent insists on fumbling deep in his own territory all the time, but the chances are he won't do that on a dry day.

The critics are sniping at Earl Blaik of Army for running up top-heavy scores over the last couple of years. We don't see how he could do anything else. Throw eleven guys on the field, and unless there's something wrong with them, they'll play the best football they know. If those eleven are as good as Army's first string has been, they'll score, and often. And if Blaik had played them only three minutes a game, they wouldn't have been getting enough work. Maybe he wanted to win in lopsided fashion, but even if he hadn't, we don't see how he could have avoided it.

Army and Cornell at West Point this Saturday; Navy and Columbia in New York. All this and a World Series too.

Double Compensation Decision

Reaffirming, from a new angle, the law forbidding a retired Army officer serving the Government in a civilian capacity to be paid combined pay of more than $3,000, the Comptroller General has rendered the decision that a retired officer substituting for a part-time employee falls within the forbidden category. The decision, made in the case of Dr. James Kenneth Kaufman, a retired medical officer, was as follows:

"A retired Army officer employed as alternate to a principal senior medical officer during such officer's absence from his part-time position may not be regarded as the incumbent of a 'civilian office or position' within the meaning of section 212 of the act of 30 June 1932, as amended, limiting to $3,000 per annum the combined rate of retired and civilian pay, except on those days when he fills the position, and on each of such days his retired pay should be reduced so that when combined with his civilian pay for that day the combined rate will not exceed the $3,000 per annum limitation."
